Post-War Program

The Naval Research Laboratory

BY COMMODORE H. A. SCHADE
Director of the Naval Research Laboratory

ON the east bank of the Potomac river, at the extreme southern tip of the District of Columbia, lies the Naval Research Laboratory. Here more than seventy buildings house scientists and engineers who devote their time and energies to research for the Navy. They are supported by a competent technical and administrative staff composed of Naval and civilian personnel.

Commo. Schade

The established mission of the Laboratory is "to increase the safety, reliability and efficiency of the Fleet by the application of scientific research and laboratory experimentation to naval problems." In order that the Navy may proceed on sound premises in its progress toward the uncertain future, it is necessary to support the accumulation of knowledge of natural phenomena, so that it may be available when the time for application is at hand.

In almost every field of the physical sciences, Naval Research Laboratory scientists are engaged in studies or experiments designed to increase the vast store of fundamental knowledge which the greatest Navy in the world needs to maintain its position of leadership. Many of these men, top flight in their particular fields, have made discoveries or developmental achievements which have not only aided the Navy, but industry as well. They have made possible the continuous stream of new things which has flowed from the Laboratory during the twenty-three years of its history. Some of the more important contributions are: shark repellents, fire fighting methods, protective ointments, synthetic greases and oils to meet exacting temperature requirements, non-inflammable hydraulic fluid for aircraft, means of controlling precipitation static in aircraft, high frequency radio communication equipment, methods of detecting submarines by underwater sound, and radar in ship-board form.

In order to prosecute research and development work, the scientists are organized into ten divisions. Each of these divisions confines its activities fairly well within the boundaries indicated by the titles listed below: Chemistry, Missile Control, Optics, Airborne Radio, Sound, Ship-shore Radio, Electrical, Physics Special Research, Metallurgy, and Electronics Special Research.

However, there are many problems and studies which overlap divisional lines and are attacked by the coordinated effort of two or more of the above groups. Organization of the administrative func-

4,000 Officers Sought For '47 Overseas Duty

The War Department has received requisitions for approximately 4,000 officer overseas replacements, it was learned this week, principally for the Pacific area with shipments beginning in January, 1947.

Of the total, approximately 1,600 officers will be of the ground arms (Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery, and Coast Artillery).

The exact size of the shipment to be made is contingent upon the establishment of new personnel ceilings which will be forthcoming shortly.

It is expected that directives specifying exact criteria, method of selection, and manner for reporting officers for shipment will be published in the near future.

Meanwhile, current information indicates that officers assigned to or detailed in the ground arms, who have the following months, or less, overseas service subsequent to 7 Dec. 1941, will be utilized to fill requisitions:

Colonels, 13 months; Lieutenant Colonels, 18 months; Majors, 24 months; Captains, 30 months; Lieutenants, 36 months; Warrant Officers, 14 months.

At present these service requirements are being used for planning purposes, not as a basis for issuance of individual alert instructions or submission of reports of eligibles.

To meet requirements for Corps of Engineers officers in overseas commands in December, 1946, and January, 1947, the following policy is applicable:

Corps of Engineers officers below the grade of colonel will be alerted immediately for overseas shipment, to arrive at a port of embarkation subsequent to 14 Dec. 1946, if they volunteer for overseas service or have had 12 months or less of overseas service since 7 Dec. 1941, and have returned from an overseas theater on permanent change of station prior to 15 Jan. 1946.

Corps of Engineers officers to whom the following criteria is applicable will not be alerted under this policy:

a. Officers who, under their present category statements, will be eligible for separation prior to 31 Dec. 1947.

b. Officers who are now on movement orders for overseas shipment or previously alerted for overseas shipment during the months of November and December 1946.

c. Officers who have been deferred from foreign service by the War Department for a period ending later than 31 Jan. 1947.

d. Officers over 57 years of age who do not volunteer for overseas service.

e. Officers who are automatically deferred from overseas under the provisions of WD Memo 600-46, subject: "Interim Measure to Stabilize Certain War Department Agencies and Faculties and Student Bodies of Schools," dated 11 June 1946.

f. Officers not physically qualified for overseas service.

g. Officers assigned to Class II and III installations.

Data on Marine Officers

All officers on active duty in the Marine Corps are directed to submit immediately to the Commandant direct, information on their military and civilian background in accordance with Letter of Instruction 1368.

Reduction of Furlough Fares

Representatives of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, and National Guard joined this week in protesting a decision by all but four railroads operating east of the Mississippi River to halt the sale of furlough tickets with the close of business 30 Nov.

The Services have written the Inter-territorial Military Committee, which represents the nation's railroads in matters concerning military transportation, that they note the rate change "with much concern," and have asked that the furlough rates be continued voluntarily by the railroads as evidence of their "wholehearted cooperation and patriotism in assisting towards bolstering the morale of the Military Forces."

The termination of furlough fares will mean that service personnel traveling in the East will have to pay normal fares 2.2 cents a mile instead of the rate of

Naval Operating Forces

Incident to the processing of streamlining the Navy, reducing command overhead, and simplifying fleet organization in the light of war experience, the operating forces of the Navy will be reorganized on 1 Jan. 1947. All numbered fleets will be abolished except for one task fleet in each ocean.

Ships will be redistributed among the following major commands:

The U. S. Pacific Fleet, with Admiral John H. Towers, as Commander in Chief, will also include all other active naval forces in the Pacific for purposes of naval administration.

The Naval Forces Western Pacific, commanded by Admiral C. M. Cooke, Jr., and responsible to Admiral Towers, will include the naval forces operating along the China Coast and ashore in China.

The Naval Forces Japan, commanded by Vice Adm. R. M. Griffin, and responsible operationally to General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, Supreme Commander, Allied Forces, Pacific, will include the Naval forces required for the occupation of Japan.

The U. S. Atlantic Fleet, with Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, as Commander in Chief, will also include all other active naval forces in the Atlantic and in Europe for purposes of naval administration.

The Naval Forces Europe, commanded by Admiral R. H. Connolly, will include all naval forces in European waters and in the Mediterranean. These forces are assigned from the Atlantic Fleet and are rotated at regular intervals.

The Naval Forces Germany, commanded by Rear Adm. R. E. Schuirmann, and responsible operationally to General Joseph T. McNarney, Military Governor, United States Zone, Germany, will include the naval forces required for the occupation of Germany.

The inactive ships in and out of commission will be assigned to the Atlantic and Pacific Reserve Fleets commanded by Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, and Admiral Richard S. Edwards, respectively.

In each ocean, responsible to the appropriate naval Commander in Chief, there will be a task fleet command prepared to accomplish such operational and

Economy-Bent Leaders Pledge Arms Support

Leaders in the new Congress, while training their big guns on a reduction of expenditures and taxes, promised this week that there will be adequate support for the National Defense.

The House Republican Steering Committee, meeting 14 Nov., issued a statement that "National Defense will be adequately provided for, but new appropriations will be trimmed to meet the necessary obligations of the Government."

Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., (R. Mass.), who will be Speaker of the new House, was a little more positive, saying to reporters:

"In these perilous times, we must maintain the Army and Navy and the Air Forces up to the full strength necessary to insure the security of the country."

Mr. Martin's statement followed a meeting at the White House in which President Truman discussed with Service leaders the budget for the fiscal year 1948 which is now being formulated for presentation to the new Congress. Present were Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of Staff to the Commander in Chief; General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff of the Army; Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Chief of Naval Operations; and Maj. Gen. George J. Richards, budget officer of the War Department.

The Steering Committee also announced the probable acceptance of the Reorganization Act, under which the Military and Naval Affairs Committees of each House are to be consolidated into Armed Forces Committees. The Committee Statement said:

"The Steering Committee voted overwhelmingly to go along with the Congressional Reorganization Act, passed by the 76th Congress, with appreciation of the fact that experience or later developments might demand clarification and improvement."

Representative Wadsworth (R. N.Y.), long-time friend of the Armed Services, told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL yesterday that he is absolutely opposed to any weakening of the Services to effect money savings. He added that he does not think Congress will stand for the administrative withholding of monies voted to the Army and Navy by it.

Mr. Wadsworth also stated that he will support unification of the Services and that he believes the Navy can be won over to the plan.

Representative Taber, (R. NY) who is slated to be chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said that he believes that by taking the non-recurring items out of the Army and Navy budgets a substantial savings can be achieved and "yet provide adequately for every requirement of the National Defense."

Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire wired the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL as follows:

"As ranking member of both the Senate Appropriations Committee and the Committee on Military Affairs, you can be sure that I am greatly interested in

Pacific Islands

Baltimore Sun—"By announcing in a formal statement that the United States will place the former Japanese islands in the Pacific under United Nations trusteeships to be administered solely by this country, President Truman has decided a domestic issue between the State Department and the military."

Philadelphia Inquirer—"We had to take every one of the islands from the Japs with the expenditure of American lives. We cannot afford to repeat the same mistake. A line of bases between Pearl Harbor and the Philippines and the China coast is essential to our defense. We are threatening no one by occupation of the islands, but we can't take chances with their occupation by others."

Pledge Strong Forces

the welfare of our Armed Services. As my record in the United States Senate will indicate, I have always favored a strong National Defense and like all thoughtful Americans, I have personal pride in all branches of the Army, Navy and Air Forces.

"The outstanding accomplishments of the Army and Navy, which have never been excelled by any other nations, must always be remembered. Of course there must be a reduction in the Federal budget, but it is our duty to maintain an Army and Navy of sufficient strength to maintain peace for the world and to provide for adequate scientific research to meet the ever increasing problems which our present day Army and Navy must face. We must constantly strive to develop the efficiency in our Armed Services which is so necessary to protect American interests and to insure everlasting peace."

Representative Walter G. Andrews of New York who as senior Republican on the House Military Affairs Committee will be its chairman if the committees remain as now organized and who also would be in line for chairmanship of the proposed Armed Forces Committee of the House if the reorganization plan should be accepted, wired as follows:

"My present views favor a continued strong Army Ground Force, Air Corps, Navy and Marines. Occupation of Japan in accordance with General MacArthur's recommendations should continue for from three to five years. This emphasizes importance of adequately manning and improving our life line bases beyond Hawaii, notably, Kwajalein, Guam, Tinian, Saipan, Okinawa and Iwo, also the Aleutians.

"We also have an equal responsibility and a more difficult one to accomplish in Europe. I feel a great majority of patriotic Americans favor such a course of action as the only safeguard and best assurance for future peace. On top of this we must back up the United Nations and meet our share of the military responsibilities under its charter provisions. Assuming these premises, our road for the next two years is going to be a most difficult one because of the necessity for balancing our economic life in this country against the military requirements. This must mean a sounder and more efficient handling of all departments within the Federal Government and above all will require honest and forthright statements to the people by all those in high political or military authority. Given such information I am sure the American people will support such a program.

"Beyond this, I favor universal military training and I am hopeful that we can attain and maintain the necessary strong Regular military forces by volunteer enlistment."

A "freshman" Senator, but experienced and efficient House member of the 79th Congress, Representative John J. Sparkman, Ala., recorded himself this week to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL as heartily in favor of early and pre-congressional publicity of expected War Department promotion policy.

Asked for his opinion about promotion by selection, the Representative said that he would favor it "if a plan can be devised that will be perfectly fair. I have my doubts about the workability of such

Louisville Courier-Journal—"Does the United States mean to take over the role of Japan in the Pacific? The Japanese assumed responsibility for the Marshall, Caroline and Marianas Islands after World War I as mandates under the League of Nations. Then they proceeded to erect secret fortifications in those islands. Now it appears that President Truman and the State Department propose an almost identical program for the United States in those same Pacific islands. It is still not too late for America to avoid this major political error."

New York Times—"Resolving a difficult problem which has caused protracted debate within the American Government itself, President Truman has now submitted to the United Nations a plan for the administration of the Pacific islands formerly held by the Japanese which fulfills all the aims of the United Nations Charter and the demands of American security."

Detroit Free Press—"We shall sit tight in the Pacific. There, we have nine points of the law on our side. We are in possession and cannot be vetoed out of it. We do not intend that any country shall ever again use these 'stepping-stones' to bring war to our shores."

New York Herald Tribune—"The Truman administration has found itself in a somewhat embarrassing dilemma in regard to the former Japanese territories, between the State Department's desire to infuse a maximum of reality and authority into the trusteeship system and the military services' pragmatic interest in the security of the Pacific bases, on which we were forced to expend so much blood and time."

a plan, but if worked properly it would be all right. But human characteristics lead too often to favoritism. What is needed is to have a new system of efficiency reporting. The present system is not suitable as a basis for selection out."

An interview with Representative George J. Bates, Mass., a member of the House Naval Committee, evoked the statement that he believes changes in lineal or selection promotion policies should be given publicity as soon as possible, with the reasons for such changes, so that interested personnel and Congress may become acquainted with the planned policies. The Representative said that while he favors promotion by selection as being a good plan, he recognizes how the human equation will affect the selection of officers, but that the services should have a plan that will develop the finest possible corps of officers.

When approached by the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, Senator Owen Brewster, Me., who was active on the National Defense Program in the 79th Congress, stated that he was sympathetic toward universal military training but that he would want to see a bill embracing the subject before committing himself; that he is against any weakening of the services, his record during his years of service guaranteeing that.

Employment of Retired Officers

Although other employment is not prohibited, "retired officers may not be employed by any firm in connection with selling naval supplies or war material to the Navy or Navy Department," the Judge Advocate General of the Navy has declared.

With respect to an inquiry concerning the right of a retired officer to be employed by a firm which conducts business with the U. S. Government, the JAG cited a provision of the Act of 10 June 1896 as amended, which states:

"That no payment shall be made from appropriations made by Congress to any retired officer in the Navy or Marine Corps who for himself or for others is engaged in the selling of, contracting for the sale of, or negotiating the sale, to the Navy or the Navy Department, any naval supplies or war material."

In Court Martial Order No. 8-1946, the JAG reviewed employment rights of retired officers generally, as follows:

"The Act of 31 July 1894, as amended (5 U.S.C. 62), prohibits retired officers whose retired pay amounts to $2,500 per annum from holding any other compensable federal office unless (1) elected thereto, (2) appointed by the President with Senate confirmation, or (3) retired because of battle injuries or incapacity incurred in line of duty. Accordingly, if a retired officer receives retired pay in the amount of $2,500 or more per annum, he may not legally be employed by the War Shipping Administration or by the United States Maritime Commission unless he comes within one of the above stated exceptions.

"Even though an officer on the retired list is permitted by law to hold another office under the Government of the United States, the Act of 30 June 1932, as amended (5 U.S.C. 59a), prohibits his receiving a combined rate of civilian compensation and retired pay in excess of $3,000. Where the retired pay is $3,000 or more per annum, the retired officer is entitled either to the pay of the civilian office or to the retired pay, whichever he may elect. This limitation does not apply to officers retired for disability incurred in combat with an enemy of the United States or for disabilities resulting from an explosion of an instrumentality of war in line of duty."

These opinions "are to be taken as advisory only," the JAG declares, stating: "Fundamentally, the question of what civil employment and compensation a retired officer of the Navy may legally accept or what civil employment and compensation he may accept without prejudice to the rights and benefits of his retired status must be determined by the retired officer concerned on his own responsibility. It is not for the Navy Department to decide in any particular case whether the prospective employment of a retired officer would come within the prohibition of any statute."

training tasks using such naval and marine units as may be assigned for specific tasks. The First Task Fleet in the Pacific will be commanded by Vice Adm. A. E. Montgomery. The Second Task Fleet in the Atlantic will be commanded by Vice Adm. W. H. P. Blandy.

Carriers, cruisers, destroyers, submarines, aircraft, patrol craft, amphibious units, and the fleet marine forces are available in the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets for assignment to these task fleets as required. There will be one active battleship in each fleet for use as a flagship or for other purposes as required.

Administrative command is exercised by the Commander in Chief of the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets through permanent fleet Type Commanders such as Commander Air Force, Commander Cruisers, Commander Destroyers and Commander Submarines. Each of these is responsible for the condition of the units of his type with respect to training, material readiness and all matters interior to the ships and aircraft squadrons.

Operational control of naval forces is exercised through task organizations—task fleets, task forces and task groups. As in the case of the task fleets and task forces of the Pacific war, any naval units required can be assigned temporarily to a task command organization while, at the same time, its regular type commander continues to discharge his responsibilities and exercise administrative command.

This system permits rapid regrouping of forces in a fast moving situation and is particularly well adapted to situations in which forces are temporarily assigned to naval commanders on foreign stations or to army officers exercising operational control incident to unified command arrangements.

Reduction of Furlough Rates

1.25 cents a mile which went into effect for servicemen and women 14 Dec. 1940. The new rates will become effective 1 Dec. unless the railroads rescind their notice suspending furlough rates or unless a formal protest is filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Although the Armed Services have addressed the railroads first in their appeal for continuance of the reduced rates for men in uniform, it was believed that they are preparing nevertheless to file a protest with the ICC in the event their request is unheeded by the railroads. On receipt of such a protest, the ICC would order public hearings, on which it would base its ruling.

The Commission has received formal 30-day notice that, except on four lines in the South, the carriers will charge servicemen the same fare as civilians beginning 1 Dec. The four railroads that have not filed notice of fare increases are the Illinois Central, the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio, the St. Louis and Frisco, and the Central of Georgia.

None of the lines west of the Mississippi River has filed notice of terminating furlough fares, and the ICC said it knew of no such intentions.

In their letter to the eastern railroads, the Armed Services related the history of the furlough rates. A portion of a letter from the railroads to the Services in 1942 declared that the furlough rate "will be continued for the duration of the war."

Now, however, the Services declare in their letter, "the Military Branches are much disturbed and concerned in receiving the formal notice that a few of the carriers desired to abrogate the understanding even before the formal expiration of the 'duration of the war.'"

The Services told the railroads that they should "continue the furlough fare arrangement in good faith and in keeping with the current understanding."

Naval Antarctic Expedition

In extension of its policy of developing the ability of naval forces to operate under any and all climatic conditions, a task force of the Atlantic Fleet, augmented by units of the Pacific Fleet, will proceed into the Antarctic as early in 1947 as ice conditions permit to carry out an extensive training and development program there throughout the duration of the navigable season.

Specifically the objectives of the expedition are:

- Training personnel and testing equipment in frigid zones.
- Consolidating and developing the results of the U. S. Antarctic Service Expedition of 1939-1941.
- Developing naval techniques for establishing, supporting and using bases under comparable conditions.
- Amplifying knowledge of the area with respect to hydrographic, geographic, geological, meteorological and electro-magnetic propagation conditions.

The War Department and other interested agencies of the Government have been invited to assign observers to accompany the expedition.

Technical control of the expedition will be exercised by Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd, USN (Ret), who is on duty in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations as advisor on Arctic and Antarctic matters, and who has been designated officer in charge of this project. Rear Admiral Byrd plans to be present with the task force and participate actively. The Task Force Commander will be Capt. Richard H. Cruzen, who was captain of the cutter USS Bear and Rear Admiral Byrd's second in command in 1939-1941. Captain Cruzen commanded the Navy's Arctic training cruise during the past summer. The Task Force will be divided into three main groups, as follows:

- The Central Group will include the flagship and headquarters communication ship, USS Mount Olympus, the Coast Guard icebreaker USS Northwind, Navy icebreaker USS Burton Island, the cargo ships USS Yancey and USS Merrick, and the submarine USS Sennet.
- The East Group will be under the immediate command of Capt. George J. Dufek, a naval aviator and a member of the previous Byrd expedition. It will include the seaplane tender USS Pine Island, the oiler USS Canisteo and the destroyer USS Brownson.
- The West Group will be under the immediate command of Capt. Charles A. Bond, also a naval aviator and a veteran of wartime aviation in the Aleutians. It will include the seaplane tender USS Currituck, the oiler USS Cacapon and the destroyer USS Henderson.

Aircraft for shore-based flight operations will be flown in from an aircraft carrier after the base has been set up on the Ross Shelf Ice.

Plans include departure from U. S. ports early in December, 1946, timely arrival in the vicinity of the Antarctic continental shelf ice and the systematic conduct of a series of exercises as long as the open season continues. Ships are expected to return to home ports in April, 1947.

While the purposes of the operations are primarily of a military nature, that is, to train naval personnel and to test ships, planes and equipment under frigid zone conditions, the expedition, because of its versatility and mobility, affords an unequalled opportunity to amplify existing scientific data. To take full advantage of this feature, arrangements have been made with other governmental departments for scientists in a number of specialties to participate.

The Army will be represented by Air and Ground Force observers and by Quartermasters interested in clothing and rations. The Weather Bureau, Coast and Geodetic Survey, Coast Guard, the U. S. Geological Service, the Hydrographic Office, the material bureaus of the Navy Department, and other government scientific agencies will provide meteorologists, geographers, oceanographers, hydrographers, photographers, etc. The Marine Corps will furnish a part of the air flight crews and other cold weather specialists.

The scientific program is subject to the general guidance of the Director of Naval Research, Rear Adm. Paul F. Lee. Altogether, approximately 4,000 officers and men will take part.

Sports Front

ARMY and Notre Dame on 9 Nov., played the most titanic (and the most famous) 0-0 tie in the history of football.

That the experts were wrong is shown by the fact that, of the hundreds who went on record with prognostications, only three called a tie result, and the lowest guess in that direction was a 14-14 score.

Yet a 0-0 conclusion was a strangely fitting one. Both teams played superb, though ultra-conservative football. The line play was on an unbelievable plane for college football, particularly on defense. Irresistible forces were meeting immovable objects on every play. Yet, despite disappointed Cadet and Irish enthusiasts, a tie was a logical climax.

One factor proved by the encounter was the importance of high class scouting. Neither team had played a game all season without at least a platoon of scouts from the opposition sitting in the press box. It is safe to assume, in fact, that every play either Notre Dame or Army had used all year had been carefully drilled into the defensive brains of the other eleven.

Consequently, the football played last Saturday was well-nigh airtight. Both teams had plenty of fine backs who were potentially dangerous at any time, but they were up against such stiff defenses that they never quite got started.

Both teams were playing for the breaks, and made sure of being ready when opportunity knocked by keeping their best men on the field at all times. Blanchard, Davis and Lujack all played 60 minutes of football. Tucker missed but a minute or two, the lapse coming in the second half when, with Notre Dame in possession of the ball, Coach Earl Blaik pulled him for three plays to give him a last-minute strategic briefing.

The expected horde of Notre Dame substitutes, which many believed would wear the Army down sometime in the second half, failed to materialize, as the Irish used exactly the same number of line substitutes as did West Point, and only four more backs. Frank Leahy said afterward, in effect, that it was no game for any but his most experienced players, and that youth would have to be served another time.

The Sprain of the Century seemed to have little effect on Irish signal-caller Lujack; if it did slow him down, one dreads to think what he would have shown if he had been in shape. Leahy had a post-mortem on this, too. He stated that the sprained ankle kept Lujack from fading back fast enough or far enough for his passes. This may very well have been, but even so, he was getting more time than either Tucker or Davis. And we wonder why it didn't affect his punting.

The closest either team came to a score was Notre Dame's eighty-five yard march in the second quarter, which stalled on the Army 3 yard line. Notre Dame was indeed impressive in this drive, during most of which the ball was advanced at will. However, when paydirt was near, Army stiffened and put on a magnificent goal-line stand, holding the Irish to nine yards on four tries and taking the ball over on downs.

Some critics after the game reasoned that Notre Dame, with place-kicker Early ready, willing and able, should have taken what looked like a sure three points at that stage of the game. Had the chance occurred in the third or fourth quarter, there might have been some basis for this argument, but Lujack reasonably seemed to think that if Blanchard or Davis were shaken loose just once, a three point lead was wiped out.

The contest, as was befitting one which had aroused the interest of the entire country, was remarkably clean and well officiated. Referee Barnum, in particular, was on top of every play, thoroughly establishing himself as a top-flight whistle-blower. Penalties were conspicuous by their absence, as only three were called all afternoon, two against Army and one on Notre Dame.

A roster of all the notables present would equal a good-sized telephone book in bulk. Secretary of War Patterson and Secretary of the Navy Forrestal were guests of Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Superintendent of West Point, as were General of the Army Eisenhower, Generals Devers, Spaatz, Hodges, and Bradley, Major General McAuliffe and Admiral Kincaid.

Navy's team bore out its supporters' claim that it is a better eleven than generally recognized by outplaying a strongly Georgia Tech eleven all the way. Some more of the outrageous luck which has been dogging Coach Tom Hamilton and his charges struck in the last three minutes of the game, as a Navy fumble and a forward pass interception resulted in Two Georgia Tech scores and a final tally of 28-20. The statistics of that one are appended hereto, for the benefit of any who might accuse us of light-hearted partiality.

November 23 finds both academy teams resting for their annual go at each other on the 30th. This is the only traditional rivalry we know of in which it is an established fact that the record book is thrown out the window and both teams start from scratch.

Recruit Training Shifted

Army Ground Forces assumed responsibility for the recruit training of all army enlisted men, other than Air Forces, 10 Nov.

In announcing the shift of responsibility, Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the AGF, said it was directed by the War Department to standardize training, reduce travel time and travel funds and utilize personnel more efficiently. Heretofore Army Ground Forces trained only those soldiers who were to serve in one of the ground arms—such as Infantry, Artillery or Armor.

The recruit training will be carried out at eight training centers selected by the War Department. An eight-week branch immaterial training program will be instituted at the earliest practicable time. The centers, with their estimated training capacity, are:

Fort Dix, N. J., 10,200; Fort Bragg, N. C., 12,800; Fort Jackson, S. C., 9,600; Fort McClellan, Ala., 3,200; Fort Knox, Ky., 9,600; Fort Bliss, Tex., 7,200; Fort Ord, Calif., 12,000; Fort Lewis, Wash., 10,500.

Fort Dix and Fort Bliss are interim training centers which will be closed out as training load slackens. These posts, however, will not be closed.

relieved of the responsibility for recruit training of their men by the new policy are the Corps of Military Police, Quartermaster Corps, Medical Corps, Corps of Engineers, Ordnance Department, Finance Department, Transportation Corps, Signal Corps and Chemical Corps.

Training centers currently under the control of the chiefs of the various technical and administrative services concerned will be disposed of in several ways. Input into the Ordnance Training Center at Aberdeen, Md., the Engineer Center at Fort Belvoir, Va., the Quartermaster Center at Camp Lee, Va., the Transportation Corps Center at Fort Eustis, Va., and the Medical Corps Center at Camp Polk, La., will be stopped at the earliest practicable date. All of these posts except for Camp Polk will, however, remain active. Camp Polk is to be inactivated prior to 31 Dec.

The Signal Corps Training Center at Fort Dix came under AGF control 10 Nov. The Engineer Training Center at Fort Lewis also came under AGF control on 10 Nov. but the Chief of Engineers will supervise technical training there through AGF until that training is completed on or about 1 Jan., 1947.

Need for Naval Officers

To meet an anticipated need for more officers than the Regular establishment can provide, the Navy has called for applications from Naval Reserve and Temporary USN officers to volunteer for retention on active duty in commissioned and warrant status through 30 June 1948.

Eligible for retention are all commissioned line and staff corps officers of the Naval Reserve including Waves, Nurses, and aviation and specialist classifications; and all temporary USN officers including warrant and commissioned warrant officers or the line and staff corps.

Requests for retention by USN(T) officers will be considered approved unless notified to the contrary by 1 April 1947. They may also request retirement, transfer to the Fleet Reserve, reversion to permanent status, or separation from the service.

Navy Unit Commendations

Navy Unit Commendations have been awarded the following Navy units:

USS Salt Lake City (CA-25), for outstanding heroism in action against superior enemy Japanese surface force in the Naval engagement of Komandorski Island, 26 March 1943.

USS Hillary P. Jones (DD-427), for extremely meritorious service in support of military operations against enemy forces off San Remo, Italy, and Port Maurizio, Italy, 17-18 Sept. 1944.

USS Wickes (DD-578), for outstanding heroism as a Fighter Direction Ship on a Radar Picket Station during the Okinawa campaign, 27 March to 15 May 1945.

USS Hudson (DD-475), for outstanding heroism in action as a Fighter Direction Ship on a Radar Picket Station during the Okinawa campaign, 1 April to 10 May 1945.

USS Frederick C. Davis (DE-136), for outstanding heroism in support of military operations during the Anzio campaign, 22 Jan. to 23 Feb. 1944.

D. C. Reserve Commanders

The 317th Glider Infantry Regiment, newly activated Reserve unit in Washington, D. C., announced 8 Nov. the appointment of its commanding officer and battalion commanders.

The commanding officer is Col. J. E. Hatcher, First Battalion commander Lt. Col. Leo V. Bishop, and Second Battalion commander Lt. Col. Robert Lee O'Brien.

Definition of Dependents

The Judge Advocate General of the Navy has ruled in C.M.O. 8-1946 that children of deceased Naval and Marine Corps personnel are not properly regarded as "dependents" and are therefore not entitled to outpatient and hospitalization services.

Limit Flow of Dependents

Assignment of overseas quarters to dependents of military personnel entitled to them under existing law must henceforth be limited, the War Department has announced.

Under the revised policy dependents of enlisted men of the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades cannot in the future be provided with overseas housing.

Finance Course Established

To implement the Gerow Plan for the education of officers of the Army, Maj. Gen. William H. Kasten, Chief of Finance, has announced the establishment of the Officers' Basic Course.

The Army-wide plan provides for the progressive military education of an officer from the time he receives his commission until he completes a course at a high-level school conducted on a joint Army, Navy and Air basis, and is the result of study and modification of a report made by the War Department Military Education Board headed by Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow. The over-all plan was announced by the War Department last May.

The Officers' Basic Course announced by the Chief of Finance will be of five months' duration starting 3 Dec., and will be conducted at the Army Finance School, Army Finance Center, OCF, St. Louis, Mo. The course will include a balanced curriculum embracing the material currently taught in the Officers' Disbursing Course and the Advanced Fiscal Course, plus other material.

This course will be conducted primarily for newly integrated officers assigned to or detailed in the Finance Department, and for others on disbursing or fiscal duties, and is open to Regular Army, National Guard, Reserve, and AUS officers who have signed a category I statement. It is anticipated that there may be an opening for a limited number of officers of other arms and services and Reserve and National Guard officers not on active duty.

UNITED STATES ARMY

C. of S. Addresses Women

General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, addressed the Advisory Council to the Women's Interests Unit, Public Relations Division, at a luncheon in the Pentagon, Washington, D. C., 14 Nov. General Eisenhower was introduced by Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, Chief of the Public Relations Division.

The conference of leaders of 36 women's organizations was welcomed by Lt. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Chief of Public Information. Secretary of War Patterson introduced the topic of the interim and peacetime mission of the Army.

Other speakers were Maj. Gen. Lauris Norstad, Director of Plans and Operations; Maj. Gen. Henry S. Anand, Director of Research and Development; Maj. Gen. Willard S. Paul, Director of Personnel and Administration; Maj. Gen. Edward F. Witsell, The Adjutant General.

Gen. Witsell Opens AG School

An address delivered Thursday by Maj. Gen. Edward F. Witsell, The Adjutant General marked the formal opening of the first post-war course to be offered at The Adjutant General's School in its new location at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Brig. Gen. Williston B. Palmer, post commander, and Col. Lathrop B. Clapham, school commandant, also delivered talks as part of the opening ceremonies. The new class is comprised chiefly of officers newly integrated into the Regular Army and assigned to the Adjutant General's Department.

AGF Strength Cut

Orders have been issued by Army Ground Forces inactivating or reducing the strength of 56 units including the 2d Armored and 3d Infantry Divisions.

The overall strength of the Army Ground Forces in the continental United States, it is estimated, will be reduced by approximately 38,000 officers and enlisted men, the equivalent of two and one-half infantry divisions, by these orders.

The two divisions are to be reduced to a cadre of one officer and one enlisted man per battalion or higher headquarters. Each, however, has officers and enlisted men on detached service with AGF's three winter task forces and these details will not be affected by the reduction program.

In addition the 2d Armored Division, stationed at Camp Hood, Tex., will retain one of its combat commands.

Besides the divisions, 19 other units of various sizes will be reduced to cadres of one officer and one enlisted man per battalion, and 35 other units, all of company size, will be stripped of all personnel but will not be inactivated. Finally all other AGF units will be temporarily cut 20 per cent to take care of men now on amphibious exercises and with the winter task forces.

Supply and Equipment Warning

An Army-wide War Department order has been issued warning that no let down in discipline in the care, preservation and conservation of all types of supplies and equipment will be tolerated.

Citing the extremely limited personnel and funds now at the disposal of the War Department, the directive states that "it is imperative that the most aggressive action be taken at all levels in the matter of supply discipline."

The A-B-C of paper work for surplus property disposal

Expedite it with Mimeograph brand die-impressed stencils of SPB and WAA mandatory forms.

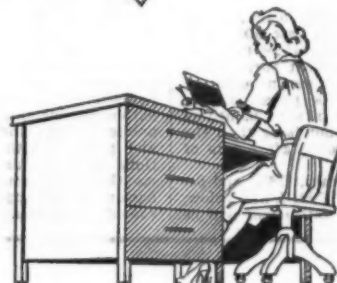

A single writing gives you as many copies as you need of surplus property disposal papers—that's the big speed-up provided by Mimeograph brand die-impressed stencils.

Already die-impressed into Mimeograph brand stencils are the mandatory forms specified in War Assets Administration directives.

All your typists do is add the fill-in material by typewriter.

Then the completed form and variable information are produced together in one operation on the Mimeograph brand duplicator.

It's as simple and easy as that. You don't have to wait for preprinted forms. One proofreading is enough, for all copies are identical. And all copies are easy to read, clear, black-and-white—won't fade even with hard handling.

Order your supply by writing A. B. Dick Company, 720 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago 6, Illinois.

DCNO (Special Weapons)

With the assignment of Vice Adm. W. H. P. Blandy to a command at sea, the Office of Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Special Weapons) has been disestablished, and his duties distributed among offices of CNO.

The functions related to guided missile development are assigned to Rear Adm. D. V. Gallery, who has been named Assistant Chief of Naval Operations (Guided Missiles) in the office of DCNO (Air). The entire staff carrying on the guided missile program under Vice Admiral Blandy since 15 Nov. 1945, will be retained under Rear Admiral Gallery.

Rear Adm. Jerauld Wright, who continues as Director of Operational Readiness in the office of the DCNO (Operations), is responsible for the review and the formulation of fleet requirements for new material developments, excepting those pertaining to aircraft, atomic energy, guided missiles and related devices.

Rear Adm. William S. Parsons has been ordered as Director of Atomic Defense in the office of DCNO (Operations). Rear Admiral Parsons will be responsible for the initiation and coordination of naval action required to implement decisions and policies with respect to atomic matters.

P. L. 305 Retirements

All officers of the rank of Captain, USN, and below or Lieutenant Colonel, USMC, and below presently recommended for retirement under provisions of Public Law 305 will be placed on the retired list 1 Jan. 1947, the Navy has announced.

Alnav 586 states:

"Attention invited to Section 5 of Act approved 21 Feb. 1946 (Public Law 305, 79th Congress, 2d session) which provides that officers recommended for retirement pursuant to referenced act shall, if such recommendation be approved by President, be placed on the retired list on the first day of such month as may be set by SecNav but not later than the first day of the seventh month after date of approval by the President.

"All officers rank of Captain, USN, and below, or Lieutenant Colonel, USMC, and below, presently recommended for retirement will be placed on retired list 1 Jan. 1947 by operation of cited statute unless retired on or before that date under other provisions of law.

"In view of the provisions of the Uniform Retirement Act which provide that retirement for any cause becomes effective on the first day of the month following the month in which the President approves the retirement, retirement of officers in above mentioned group on own request or on account of physical disability must be approved by President on or prior to 31 Dec. 1946. Otherwise retirement will be effected in accordance provisions of referenced law."

Create Medical Group in Navy

In announcing it will introduce legislation for the purpose of creating a Medical Allied Science Corps, the Navy has called for applications from USNR and USN (T) officers for transfer to the Regular Navy in certain specialties.

Alnav 587, announcing the new Corps, states:

"Applications are desired from Reserve and temporary USN officers for transfer to the Regular Navy in a proposed Medical Allied Science Corps. Such officers as are selected may be ordered to active duty if they so desire or be retained on active duty until legislation to establish their classification is authorized or fails of enactment. In general this program will be conducted in accordance with the regulations governing transfer to the Regular Navy under Public Law 347 and the application procedure contained in BuPers C/L 288-45 revised. Local board interview and report is not required. Commandants and/or Commanding Officers shall forward all applications to the Bureau of Naval Personnel via the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery. Age and physical requirements are the same as for Medical, Dental, and Hospital Corps officers. Educational qualifications require a Doctor's degree in their specialty. Applications are desired in the following fields: acarology, bacteriology, biology, chemistry, entomology, epidemiology, genetics, malacology, nutrition, parasitology, physics, physiology, psychology, pathology, mammology, malariology, zoology, public health (industrial hygiene), virology and public health (statistics). The restrictions as to submission of requests within six months after release to inactive duty or resignation do not apply and applications will be considered until a closing date is specified."

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

Retirement of USN(T) Officers

A decision by the Comptroller General (B-61122) of 28 Oct. rules that provisions of Public Law 305 operate to entitle temporary USN officers, upon their return to inactive status, to have on the retired list the highest commissioned rank in which they served under temporary promotion and to have their retired pay based upon pay prescribed for the higher rank.

AlNavSta 58, announcing this decision, also states:

"Decision further provides that individuals retired as enlisted men but entitled retired pay based on temporary commissioned or commissioned warrant rank pursuant to Public Law 305 are not subject to provisions of dual employment statute of 31 July 1894 but are subject to dual compensation provisions of Section 212 of Economy Act of 30 June 1932. Therefore individuals entitled retired pay computed such basis may accept civilian position with salary in excess of $2,500 but the combined per annum rates of civilian and retired pay shall not exceed $3,000 per annum. If the rate of retired pay equals or exceeds $3,000 per annum, individuals may elect to receive either retired pay or civilian compensation. If the rate of civilian salary equals or exceeds $3,000 per annum, it may be received if the right to retired pay is relinquished until such time as civilian position is vacated.

"Individuals receiving retired pay computed on temporary rank of warrant officers may receive concurrently retired pay and salary of any amount in their civilian positions. Navy civilian personnel instructions 50 will be amended accordingly."

Bar Gifts to Superiors

President Truman has approved the following change in U. S. Navy Regulations, 1920:

Article 100(2). Change paragraph (2) to read:

"No person in the Naval service and no person employed under the Navy Department shall at any time solicit contributions from other persons in the Naval service or from other officers, clerks or employees in the Government service for a gift or present to those in a superior official position; nor shall any persons in such superior official positions receive any gift or present offered or presented them as a contribution from persons in Government employ (including persons in the Naval service) receiving a less rate of pay than themselves, nor shall any of said persons make any donation as a gift or present to any such official superior."

USMC Transfer Program

The Marine Corps has followed the Navy in reducing from four months to ten days the time in which Reserve and Temporary officers must accept permanent USMC commissions when tendered. Commissions must be accepted or declined within ten days after publication of Letters of Instruction. To date, lists of officers selected for transfer have been published in LI 1298, 1310, 1318, 1332, and 1348.

Promotions to CPO(AA)

Procedures to be followed in competitive examinations for advancement to CPO(AA) are outlined in BuPers C/L 240. Dates for the examinations will be announced at a later date.

orders a fleet of 12 New Convair-240's!

KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, with its 26,000-mile network of air routes serving five continents, is the fifth major airline to order a fleet of America's most modern twin-engine airliners—Convair-240's.

KLM selected the Convair-240 to fill its need for an intermediate-range transport plane which would offer the advantage of 300-mile-per-hour speed and such advanced features as pressurized cabin and air conditioning for greater passenger comfort.

The new Convair-240 airliner will be in service by mid-'47, on KLM, as well as on American Airlines, Pan American World Airways, Western Air Lines, and Continental Air Lines. It will carry 40 passengers with a new high standard in air-travel comfort and convenience. Watch for it!

Why
flying in the Convair-240

1. Air-conditioned comfort! The Convair-240 is completely air-conditioned. Cool air, with controlled humidity—and radiant-wall heating—insure your comfort winter or summer.

2. 40 Passengers—at 330 m.p.h.! Two 2400-h.p. engines enable the Convair-240 to cruise at 300 miles per hour.

3. Auxiliary jet-exhaust thrust—for added speed! The Convair-240 is the first commercial transport plane to utilize this modern principle.

4. Reversible-pitch propellers for smoother landings! In addition to hydraulic wheel brakes and wing flaps, the Convair-240 has reversible-pitch propellers, which enable the plane to come to a full stop on the runway in a much shorter distance.

5. "Low level" flight comfort at high altitudes! Cabin air pressure is automatically controlled for passenger comfort regardless of altitude.

6. Heated wings prevent icing! The Convair-240 uses the anti-icing safety system developed by Consolidated Vultee for combat planes during the war. Leading edges of wings and tail are heated—ice and snow melt on contact.

7. Lands level! The Convair-240 lands level, and is still level when it comes to a stop.

8. You relax in easy-chair comfort! A newly designed type of reclining seat gives you all the leg room you want. In the Convair-240 there's no bumping your knees against the seat ahead.

"Established in obedience to an insistent demand for an official organ for members of the American Defense and those concerned with it, The Army and Navy Journal will be published in the interest of no party; it will be controlled by no clique. Its independence will be absolute. Its interest will be directed solely to the inculcation of sound military ideas and to the elevation of the public service in all its departments."—From Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Army and Navy Journal, published August 29, 1865.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1946

"Sea power means no more and no less than a nation's ability to control the ocean routes over which its commerce must move to carry vital imports and exports in peace and war, and over which its fleets must operate in that nation's defense."—FLEET ADMIRAL CHESTER W. NIMITZ.

THE country, and particularly its military establishments, will feel reassured in the knowledge that General of the Army Eisenhower has not the slightest intention of retiring as Chief of Staff of the Army to accept any other position under the government. To all aware of his devotion to the Services, and his purpose to promote its efficiency in these days of difficult peace, such reassurance would seem to be hardly necessary. We are giving it now merely because of a printed rumor that he may accept the post of Ambassador to Great Britain, and is a receptive candidate for the nomination for the Presidency. As a matter of fact, he would not consider a diplomatic appointment, and he has repudiated all idea of seeking the Presidential nomination of either party—and we can say emphatically that he means what he says. General Eisenhower is a soldier and solely with a soldier's ambition, and that ambition, especially in this age of atomic and guided missiles warfare, is to make our Army an impregnable force for National Security, and a source upon which to draw for the protection of our world flung interests and for the discharge of the international duties we have assumed in the occupation areas and under the United Nations. The office of Chief of Staff is, in these dangerous times, of primary importance, and in this respect no diplomatic appointment can compare with it. Indeed, in filling it General Eisenhower is required to act as Ambassador to all nations by reason of his membership upon the Military Staff Committee of the Security Council of the United Nations, and this is especially true of Great Britain with whose military representatives he is serving upon the continuing Combined Chiefs of Staff. So far as the Presidency is concerned, the General has few illusions about politics, and has no wish nor desire to have anything to do with them. No one is more aware of this fact than is President Truman, who can rely upon the advice he receives from his Chief of Staff for the Army as absolutely untinted with thought of self, and motivated solely by the National interest. Congress, too, has a like understanding, a condition essential for the kind of relationship which alone will further the plans of the General to make the Army the most efficient for its numbers in the world. The suggestion that the General wants to retire because he is irked at the prospect of economy may be readily dismissed. He is fully aware of the need for economy in the national administration, and within the needs of the nation is formulating his program, the adoption of which he recognizes, and wholeheartedly realizes, will be the responsibility of the Civilian power, the President and the Congress. He is applying to current problems the same determination to see a job through to the end, the same high qualities of leadership and administration, and the same love of country and the Service that carried him from North Africa, Sicily, and Italy through the organization of the Allied Expeditionary Force and to the ultimate crushing of our foes in Europe. Having a Chief of Staff of such eminence and patriotism, there is surety that he will promote the best interest of the country and of the military establishment, and there can be complete confidence in his determination to discharge fully and continuously the responsible post that is his.

VOLUNTARILY retiring from the United States Senate, Admiral Thomas C. Hart promises to continue as an influence for the good of the Services. It is important that this will be so. During the two years he served in the Upper House, he was distinguished by the sincere regard and respect even of his colleagues who disagreed with him. Aside from their recognition of his expert knowledge of naval and military affairs based upon his long career in the Sea Service which closed with his intrepid and able command of the foredoomed Asiatic Fleet, they realized that in his votes he was never swayed by a current popular opinion but by his convictions. In other words, he was for or opposed to a measure as his study convinced him was in or against the interest of State and Country. This was the intent of the founders of the Republic, who sought to have the Congress act not at the behest of the momentary whim of the people but as their best judgment determined. Unfortunately we have gone far from that ideal, and the effort of many members of the two Houses is to vote as their constituents desire rather than for what is ultimately for the public good. It follows that, particularly with his Republican affiliates, Admiral Hart will be most helpful in preventing the economy axe from cutting too deeply into the funds essential for the security of the Nation and for the discharge of our overseas obligations. We are assured that the Republican leaders have no intention of endangering the protection of the country, rather of eliminating waste and thus practicing economy along the lines the Services themselves desire. In other words, they, no more than the democrats, have any idea of repeating the mistake of single disarmament but instead plan to cut our forces only in accordance with like action by other Powers so, and then only to the point where our defense shall be secure. It must be remembered always that by the Charter of the United Nations we must have contingents available for service with the UN forces called into being to suppress aggression. In addition, we must retain additional forces for our own protection, and for this reason as well as the provision that must be made to meet the perils of atomic war, we must not only supplement the Regular Army by well trained and equipped National Guard and Reserves, but adopt the system of universal service which even the Socialist British Government plans. All citizens must participate in requiring the adoption of this program and in their forefront we may expect men of the type of Admiral Hart.

Careful Bill

"Arizona Joe" the animal hunter and trainer, was telling an after dinner story: "Old Bill had charge of the animal tent, and among his pets was a leopard. One day I went away to arrange some business. While I was having dinner a telegram was handed me. It read: 'The leopard has escaped; prowling about town; what shall I do?'—Bill."

"Bill was one of those fellows who had to have explicit directions to do anything even in an emergency. He was afraid of making a mistake."

"Shoot him on the spot," I wired. I forgot all about the affair until two hours later, when I returned to the hotel and another telegram was handed me. It proved to be from careful conscientious Bill, who asked: "Which spot?"

Ask The Journal

(This Department is maintained as a service for ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL subscribers. Please send return postage for direct reply.)

C.E.C.—A man between the ages of 18 and 21 may enlist in the Army under Public Law 190, 79th Congress, although if his parents so request he may be discharged from that portion of his contract of enlistment which extends beyond the duration of the War and six months (Section 3, Public Law 190). This Act (a Federal law) supersedes any state law which may conflict with it.

W.H.S.—According to the War Department an Air Reserve Officer who has been completely separated from the service may retain the Air Reserve bonus he received at the time of his separation, even though he may later accept a commission in the Regular Army.

E.C.K.—In 1941 the War Department announced that all enlisted promotions after 1 July 1941 would be temporary. This was a wartime measure. Men now enlisting in the Regular Army are given permanent grades. Prior to 1 July 1941 both temporary and permanent promotions were given, and the fact that a promotion was given before that date would not necessarily mean that it was a permanent promotion.

One of the first of the pending bills to gain the attention of Congress will be that empowering the President, on the outbreak of war, to increase the enlisted strength of companies of infantry and artillery to 200 men and of troops of cavalry to 150 men. This scheme gives the Regular Army a war strength of 85,000 men and officers.

80 Years Ago

The new uniform regulations of the Navy go into effect on the 1st of December next. The body coat and cocked hat are restored for foreign service, but it is not obligatory upon officers in the United States to procure or use either of them. All Regular officers are required to procure epaulettes, and their use upon the ordinary frock coat, with sword and sword knot, constitutes the full dress uniform for general duty and official visits.

AAF Tests New Camera

The world's largest aerial camera, designed to take large scale photographs from stratospheric reconnaissance planes at heights up to ten miles, has been developed and is undergoing testing by the Army Air Forces' Photographic Laboratory. The Air Materiel Command Headquarters at Wright Field, Ohio, announced 11 Nov.

Larger in size and greater in focal length than any aerial camera ever constructed, including the Big Bertha used in the Bikini bomb tests, this camera represents the latest achievement of the Air Forces in keeping abreast of the rapid progress being made in aircraft development.

Designated the K-30, the camera has a 100-inch focal length, f/10 lens and will provide 9x18 inch pictures with two and one-half times more photographic detail from altitudes as high as ten miles, than could be obtained from the largest standard camera used at present.

AAF Colonel Elected

Col. Ben G. Holzman, 4109 W Street, N.W., Washington, D. C., has been elected chairman of the District of Columbia branch of the American Meteorological Society.

Colonel Holzman, well known as a weather forecaster and research scientist, was one of the three top-ranking American forecasters to give the go-ahead forecast for the D-Day Invasion of Normandy. He was also chief weather officer for the recent Bikini tests and was special weather adviser for the first A-bomb trial in New Mexico.

Gen. Kenney Urges Single Dept.

General George C. Kenney, commanding general of the Strategic Air Command, urged the establishment of a single department of National Defense with equal status for air, land and sea forces, in an Armistice Day address at St. Louis, Mo., 11 Nov.

"Unification does not mean subjugation," General Kenney said, promising that there would be "no submergence of any arm of our military forces" under the plan for unification which "the President has laid before Congress and before the people."

Extracts from General Kenney's speech follow:

"In August 1945 the President asked the Joint Chiefs of Staff of our Army and Navy for a definition of the respective missions of the two services. He is still waiting for that answer. Each service stands fast on its concept of its own responsibilities. Overlapping functions cannot be straightened out so the debate goes on. The arguments of jurisdiction which went on constantly during the war are still going on."

"If after over a year the two armed services still cannot tell the President what each of them is supposed to do in time of war, how can we say that we have the proper organization?"

"There is a critical scarcity of brains for research but we are even competing for these in spite of the fact that we know that the laboratories of the world are burning the midnight oil searching for newer and more destructive weapons."

"Today the Army and the Navy are each conducting costly and complex scientific research programs for development of the same kinds of equipment and weapons. Each department is developing radar, television, jet propelled engines, rockets and dozens of other items."

Gen. George Resigns

Lt. Gen. Harold L. George, commanding general of the Air Transport Command throughout most of the war and recently Army Air Forces representative on the Military Staff Committee of the United Nations, resigned 11 Nov. to enter civil aviation with a new international air line.

General George left the Army after nearly 30 years of service which included two wars to become president and chairman of the board of Peruvian International Airways, established and chartered by the Peruvian Government to operate a passenger and cargo service between Lima and Montreal, via Panama, Havana and New York.

General George will establish offices and residence in Lima; Peru, where he will be joined by his wife, their son, and three daughters.

AAF School to Move

The Army Air Forces Bombardier-Navigator-Radar Training School at Mather Field, Calif., will move soon to Las Vegas, Nev. Army Air Base, Army Air Forces Headquarters announced 12 Nov.

Combat units of the Tactical Air Command will replace the school at Mather Field.

The move will be made to utilize the facilities of both bases more efficiently. Las Vegas Army Air Base is equipped with a large gunnery and bombing range, which is required in the program of the training school. Mather Field's bombing range, considerable distance from the field, proved less economical for the school's operations but will be adequate for needs of the Tactical Air Command units.

Gen. White PACUSA C. of S.

Maj. Gen. Thomas D. White, commanding general of the Seventh Air Force, has been assigned as chief of staff of the Pacific Air Command, U. S. Army. It was announced 28 Oct. by Lt. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead, commanding general of PACUSA.

General White succeeds Maj. Gen. Clements McMullen, who is returning to AAF Headquarters in Washington for reassignment. Brig. Gen. Donald F. Stace, formerly commanding general of the Guam Air Materiel Area, has been named to succeed General White as Seventh Air Force commander.

20,000 Pilots Enroll in Reserve

More than 20,000 former Army Air Forces pilots, all veterans of World War II, have enrolled for inactive duty training under the AAF's four-month-old Air Reserve training program, and nearly 7,000 of them already have qualified for training and begun flying and have completed more than 52,000 flying hours.

Training of the Reserve is to be carried on at more than 100 special Air Reserve bases located throughout the country. As of 27 Oct. 60 Air Reserve bases had been established in 34 states. Organization of the entire program will be completed by 1 July 1947.

AAF European Weather Central, located at Wiesbaden, Germany, furnishes weather forecasts to pilots clearing over dozens of air routes, briefs commanders on weather conditions, supplies data to Armed Forces overseas radio network, and transmits meteorological information by radio and teletype.

Since weather information must cover a wide area, accurate reports from as far west as the Mississippi River and as far east as Siberia are available at the European Weather Central. By agreement with the nations concerned, weather forecasts of foreign countries are intercepted so a complete weather picture can be obtained.

The Weather Central is commanded by Maj. Ralph Beatty.

ANNALS OF AN ARMY WIFE

By Katherine Tupper Marshall

THIS delightfully informal book, written by the wife of our wartime Chief of Staff, reveals the personal qualities, the moods, the home and the humanity of the man of whom the President said in a citation: "Millions of Americans gave their country outstanding service. General of the Army George C. Marshall gave it victory . . . He takes his place at the head of the great commanders of history."

Telling General Marshall's story, TOGETHER is also the inspiring chronicle of insuperable odds being overcome that our country and civilization might survive.

Recommended by the Book-of-the-Month Club.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—Plans for economic unification of the American and British zones of Germany have been discussed this week at the State Department, with Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, deputy military governor in Germany, present as an active advisor to Under Secretary of State Acheson. (General Clay also is first witness at the Senate Investigating Committee's opening meeting on 18 Nov.) Agreement in principle was reached long ago, and recent experience in both zones, with winter approaching, has simply added to the weight of evidence favoring unification—not only of the American and British zones but the others as well. However, a start must be made, and this is the place to start. The discussion at the State Department (with War, Treasury, Commerce, Labor, Agriculture and Budget all represented, and numerous British ministries as well) is concerned not with the main issue, which is settled, but with ways and means of performing it, and more particularly with the distribution of costs for administering and relieving the unified zones. This is no small item during the next three years (our present annual cost is $200,000,000). In many respects the economic state of Germany is worse than it was, and heavy expenditures are required if we are to demonstrate that Germany itself will be bettered by unification. So far as the purely military aspects of occupation are concerned, no immediate change is predicted, although it is manifest that economic betterment of the zones should lighten the task of maintaining order.

The opening of the British Parliament's new session is of special interest at this time in that the Labor government announces clearly its program for continuing army conscription. There, as here, the announced effort is to get volunteers if possible, but to maintain the draft as a certain means of maintaining the military establishment. The King's speech merely noted that the plan for a combined Ministry of Defense will be presented shortly; it will be remembered that this is far from a complete welding of Royal Navy and Air Forces and Army, but much more of a coordination of the three, each of them retaining a great deal of individual authority.

In an unusually amiable speech before the Foreign Press association, Mr. Molotov expressed a confidence that the powers can come to accord on reduction of armaments, including control of the atomic bomb. He noted that America had "met the Russian proposal" and offered further proposals; he added that in turn his government is willing to "meet the American delegation." Mr. Molotov's remarks were fairly typical of others at this unofficial meeting, and momentarily provided hope that the foreign ministers' very official meetings may be marked by a continuation of such amiability. Not much substance is present to sustain that hope, for disagreement on Trieste and other issues is unrelieved, and the atomic bomb breach quite unclosed. From Berlin, however, have come repeated intimations that the informal and continuous negotiations on the spot are leading toward modifications of policy—modifications encouraged wholly by self-interest, which is one of the most effective of encouragers. Russia, in brief, at last seems to recognize her own need for a larger German industrial output, and thereby is impressed more forcefully than by all previous evidence that Germany herself, or the west, would profit from larger industrial operations. But larger industrial activity calls for larger political unity. Now there is, therefore, a more open mind about the desirability of that German unification which hitherto Britain and America had been urging long and unsuccessfully. However, it is reasonably sure that if Russia yields in that respect, we will be asked to yield in some other. In the matter of Danubian control, we already have agreed to restore to the lower Danube states the river-barges we have long held, for arguing purposes in the American zone of Austria. In this respect we meet Russia's wishes, to be sure, but also those of our own uneasy diplomats, who never favored retention of the barges as hostages for negotiations.

In Korea, Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge is expected to give to the Koreans an increased responsibility for their own affairs, while retaining in his own hands a necessary veto, for use as a brake. Again, this is an adjustment in which the time factor has been important. There has been Korean dissatisfaction with our tight control and with what the Koreans regard as our tolerance of certain war-time collaborators of one degree or another. But there is greater Korean dissatisfaction with the much tighter controlled exercised on the Russian side of the 38-degree parallel; relaxing of American severity is thought likely to bring far better relations between America and the Koreans.

The defense implications involved in the formulation of the Indonesian Republic in territory running up to the southern reaches of the Philippines are being studied carefully both in Washington and Manila. Indonesians reached an agreement with the Dutch in Batavia this week that now needs only assent from the Queen in Amsterdam before formal signing.

For those who had hoped that by late 1946 post-war France would attain a solidarity, and hence a driving-power, which had not been seen for many years before the war, Sunday's election is a profound disappointment. The fact that the Communists regained their 1945 position as largest vote-getters is less important than might be imagined—it was a party gain of 5 per cent, to be sure, but one entirely acquired from the old Socialist popular vote, which between elections lost nearly 20 per cent. These two leftist parties in combination still have considerably less than half the national total. Likewise M. Bidault's Popular Republicans in dropping to second place did so by forfeiting only 1 per cent of their old vote—and that to the parties further to the right politically. As is often the case, the new alignment marks popular impatience with moderation and compromise, and a quest for decisiveness one way or the other. It seems most unlikely that the Communists (with only 28 per cent of the vote, and no natural allies save the much-weakened Socialists) can expect to get either premiership or presidency through coalition. The moderates and rightists are likelier to unite for that purpose, but, even so, to hold control by so small a balance that the coalition will break up in the first high wind, and French politics can produce high winds on short notice. In this respect that unhappy nation, with its multitude of parties, demonstrates that it has learned nothing about political government, and made no progress toward that condition for which the western world had earnestly hoped—a France whose political unity and stability would permit its steady rehabilitation. The election is discouraging, not because the Communists won plurality leadership by a nose, but because no party and no probable coalition won a rousing majority which could confidently state a firm policy, either good or bad, either foreign or domestic.

Army Reorganization—The 1 Sept. deadline for the submission of additional comment and recommendations for the revision of the tentative War Department reorganization plan now in effect has been removed due to the fact that it did not allow sufficient time for complete compilation and study.

Much of the required data has now been assembled by the War Department General and Special Staff Divisions, Army Ground Forces, Army Air Forces, Army Areas, and the Technical and Administrative Services, and forwarded to the Director of Organization and Training, War Department General Staff, where it is now the subject of study prior to the issuance of the final plan.

Office of Naval Research—Commodore R. E. Robinson, Jr., Assistant Naval Attache for Research in London, and Dr. H. M. MacNeille have attended a scientific meeting on supersonics and aerodynamics at St. Louis, France. They are now in Zurich, Switzerland, for about ten days to establish scientific contacts and liaison. Commodore Robinson will visit the Office of Naval Research in Washington in January.

Comdr. Eugene Bollay, Joint Army-Navy Upper Atmosphere Project Officer, NOTS, Inyokern, Calif., arrived in Washington this week following a stop at Wright Field. He will be on duty in the Geophysics Section, Planning Division, for a few days.

Comdr. George Vaux, also of the Planning Division, left for Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., last week for a brief inspection. He is to go to the Bartol Research Foundation in Swarthmore, Pa., in connection with data on Operation Crossroads.

Medical Department—Professional advantages gained by practicing medicine in the peacetime Regular Army were cited by Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General, 15 Nov. in letters sent some 5,000 young Army doctors.

All doctors who received their medical education in the Army Specialized Training Program during the war were supplied with up-to-the-minute information regarding a career in the Regular Army. In future integrations of Medical Corps officers the War Department has authorized the commissioning of approximately 1,600 doctors.

Under the present program, more than 400 Army doctors will have completed graduate and refresher courses by 31 Dec. The Surgeon General is anxious to qualify as many Army doctors as possible for consideration by American Specialty Boards. This program has the endorsement of the American Medical Association.

Marine Corps—A short motion picture published in connection with the Corps' 171st anniversary, 10 Nov., has been distributed for showings to the services and to the public, covering Marine activities since their last anniversary. General A. A. Vandegrift opens the movie, and introduces successive shots of the United Nations Guard, the Marines in China, Marines at Bikini, post-war demobilization, and discharge of all but 500 of the Women's Reservists who served the Corps so well during the war. Prints were made in both 16- and 35-mm. The 16-mm. films have gone to NROTC units and to Marine posts and stations, and the 35-mm. films have been distributed to recruiting divisions. Each will arrange for public showings of the movie, which lasts approximately eight minutes.

The Marine Barracks at the Naval Gun Factory, Washington, D. C., received a bronze plaque of the famous Iwo Jima flag-raising scene in ceremonies at the Gun Factory 12 Nov. Rear Adm. Theodore D. Rudderick, Jr., superintendent, made the presentation to Col. Harold E. Rosecrans, commanding officer of the Marine Detachment there. The tablet, which was cast at the Gun Factory, is a replica of the one presented to the British Royal Marines by the U. S. Marines on the occasion of the British Empire's Victory celebration in London 8 June.

Capt. Elizabeth J. Elrod, USMCR (W), has been presented the Medal of Honor, awarded posthumously to her husband, Maj. Henry T. Elrod, USMC, for his heroic part in the defense of Wake Island 8-23 Dec. 1941. General Vandegrift made the presentation 8 Nov. at Marine Corps Headquarters.

The break in the Jiggs dynasty by the death of Jiggs IV has been bridged. "Cappy," sired by RKO's bulldog, "Lonarch," made his appearance at Quantico last week. He was presented by Mrs. Russell Carhart of Philadelphia. Cappy is from the same kennel which owned a sister of Jiggs IV.

Task Force "Frigid"—Col. Louis T. Heath, Army Ground Forces Plans and Developments Section, who has been spending the past two weeks with the Task Force "Frigid" at Ladd Field, has left by air to return to his duties at Washington after a brief stop-over in Seattle to confer with members of the task force who are at the "Frigid" liaison section on supply problems.

During his stay here at Army Ground Forces Task Force "Frigid," Colonel Heath made a brief visit by air to Adak Island to inspect the installations of AGF Task Force Williwaw, Commanded by Col. Joseph D. Raney, which is testing equipment under the cold-wet conditions found in that area.

The AGF Task Force "Frigid," the Army's largest cold weather testing unit will spend the winter in the Fairbanks area testing the Ground Forces rolling stock and all types of equipment for the purpose of determining methods and improvement required to provide adequate defense in Arctic regions.

It is understood that Colonel Heath will pay the task force another visit at a later date—during the testing phase which is due to start in the very near future.

Judge Advocate General's Department—Approximately 1000 officers assigned to Headquarters Command, USFET, are to undergo a thorough twelve-hour course of instruction in military law and the procedure of courts martial designed to make every officer professionally competent to investigate and prefer charges and to act as a member, trial judge advocate or defense counsel of a court-martial.

The adjutants and selected officers from each unit of the Headquarters Command are now attending a preliminary instructor's course being conducted by the Staff Judge Advocate Section, Headquarters Command, under the direction of Lt. Col. William F. Fratcher, Staff Judge Advocate. Colonel Fratcher, Captains B. F. Adams, Eugene J. Ralston and George H. McPherson, Assistant Staff Judge Advocates, and Mr. W. F. Blanks of the Staff Judge Advocate Section, are providing these potential instructors with intensive briefing in the subject matter they are to teach and with prepared teaching materials. Upon completion of the instructor's course the officers attending it will return to their units to conduct similar courses there.

Each of the courses of instruction will include lectures and discussions on the background and sources of military law, the jurisdiction of courts martial, pre-trial investigation and procedure, the punitive Articles of War, disciplinary powers of commanding officers, the rules of evidence in trials before courts martial, the preparation of court-martial records, and the drafting of court-martial orders.

Bureau of Supplies and Accounts—It has recently been agreed between the Paymaster General of the Navy and the Quartermaster General of the Army that the coordinated subsistence procurement programs which developed of necessity during the war will be continued during peace at least until 1 Jan. 1948. It has been considered that Army-Navy consolidation of requirements and purchases of subsistence items is one of the finest examples of inter-service cooperation existing during the war. This fact and the present very difficult procurement situation in most food markets indicate the desirability of continuing the programs.

In the nonperishable field, about 85 per cent of the items used will be subject to procurement by the Army for both services. Army contracts will be made and allocated to the Navy for delivery at naval activities. Unlike the war years, however, when it was possible to have extended periods of canner's storage, it has only been possible to obtain a canner's storage period of about two months on the fruits and vegetables being procured during the present season.

In the perishable field, the Navy Market Office system will be continued although with a reduced number of offices. At present the Navy operates eight market offices. This number will be reduced to four sometime during the quarter ending 31 March 1947. They will be located at New York, Chicago, San Francisco, and New Orleans. The number of Quartermaster Market Centers which perform procurement as well as distribution functions will probably be reduced to twelve or sixteen.

As during the war, the Navy will continue to use the facilities of the five months course of instruction at the Quartermaster Subsistence School in Chicago. The billet of liaison officer with the Quartermaster Food and Container Institute in Chicago, who acts as a link between the food research activities of the Army and the Subsistence Division of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, will also be maintained.

The Armored Center—Maj. Gen. John W. Leonard, acting in his capacity as Post Commander and Commandant of the Armored School, and under directives from the Army Ground Forces has effected the reorganization of AGF schools at Ft. Knox, Ky., an assumed command of the newly established Armored Center there. He will also continue as Commandant of the Armored School.

Under the new set-up General Leonard, as commanding general of the Armored Center, is responsible for the Armored School, Replacement Training Center, Army Ground Forces Board #2 and all other Army Ground Forces troops at Ft. Knox.

The Armored Center will operate in two echelons, with the Armored Center headquarters as senior headquarters. Under it will be the Ft. Knox headquarters which will continue to be responsible for post administration, civilian employees, supply matters, fiscal and finance functions and the welfare and morale of military personnel.

Col. John F. Davis, who had been Deputy Post Commander, will command the Ft. Knox headquarters. Col. Lawrence G. Forsythe will continue as executive officer of post headquarters. As part of the consolidation, the staff of the Armored Center headquarters will act in a dual capacity as staff of the Armored School headquarters. The staff consists of the following: Col. Bertram A. Holtzworth, executive; Lt. Col. Jack A. Boulger, S-1; Lt. Col. William L. Wells, S-2; Col. James I. King, S-3; Lt. Col. Robert S. Demitz, S-4; Lt. Col. Joe Kocknavate, Adjutant General; Maj. Ernest R. Farrell, Inspector General; Lt. Col. Marvin W. Ludington, staff judge advocate; Capt. Thomas H. Callahan, fiscal officer and Capt. Sidney J. Guard, headquarters commandant. Lt. Col. Robert S. Demitz will also serve as director of supply for the Ft. Knox headquarters. Col. Maurice W. Daniel will continue as Assistant Commandant of the Armored School.

Potomac River Naval Command—In response to a directive last month from the Bureau of Naval Personnel to survey the number of men on subsistence and quarters with a view toward reducing the cost of this item throughout the Navy, the Potomac River Naval Command has stopped payment of subs and quarters and ordered all of its enlisted personnel into barracks, where they will subsist on the general mess.

Infantry School—The Infantry Center, composed of all AGF units at Fort Benning with Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel at its head, was established here 1 Nov. as a result of sweeping revision of the Army Ground Forces School System.

The Infantry School, AGF Board No. 3, Army Ground Forces troop units at Benning and the Post of Fort Benning have all been placed under The Infantry Center which is directly responsible to the Commanding General, Army Ground Forces.

The Commanding General, Infantry Center, will exercise command over all AGF units on the post for problems of supplies, medical services, billeting, and other administrative matters but will not exercise control over the primary missions of special organizations such as development and research by AGF Board No. 3.

Col. Irvine C. Scudder, combat veteran of both World Wars, has assumed command of the Infantry School's Student Training Regiment relieving Col. Hamilton Thorn. Colonel Scudder comes to the regimental headquarters at the STR from the office of the Director of Officer Candidates, where he was assistant to the director.

Seventh Army—The following officers arrived at Seventh Army Headquarters, Atlanta, Ga., during the past week: Lt. Col. George W. McCaffrey, Inf.; Lt. Col. Martin H. Burkes, AGD; Lt. Col. Robert M. Gant, AGD; Col. James E. Holdway, Ord.; Maj. Chester E. McKay, AGD; Maj. Leonard Stump, Ord.; Capt. Albert C. Harley, Sig. C.; Capt. James E. Long, Sig. C.; and Capt. Charles N. Reed, Ord.

The following officers and warrant officers departed Seventh Army Headquarters during the past week: WOJG George M. Rivenbark; CWO John L. Bryant; Lt. Col. Newton L. Chamberlain, Sig. C.; Maj. Frank L. Banta, AUS; Capt. Charles B. Taylor, Inf.; Capt. Ray J. Cox, TC; Capt. Herman J. Schwartz, TC; and Capt. Idus B. Moore, AUS.

Military Police—The serious traffic problem in the Manila area headed the agenda at a recent conference of high Army authorities called to consider the military police program. Colonel Kindervater, Army Provost Marshal, announced that the recent arrival in Manila of 450 newly assigned MPs would make it possible to intensify greatly the program of law enforcement, giving special attention to the critical traffic situation.

A Military Police School has been established there under the direction of Major Tenney, formerly director of Traffic in Manila. All newly assigned MPs are taking an intensive four-week course of instruction in modern military police methods.

Upon completion of the course, successful graduates will be assigned to military police duty in the Manila area. This augmentation of the force will make it possible to man 50 jeep patrols, five times the number now on duty. Foot patrolling will also be increased, but first emphasis will be placed on reducing speeding, reckless driving and the prevention of traffic accidents.

Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—Although Vice Adm. Ross T. McIntire's present four-year term as Surgeon General of the Navy will terminate on 1 Dec., no successor has been named nor has it been announced that he will retire. Admiral McIntire has served in the Navy since 1917, however, and has more than enough service for retirement. It has been rumored for some time that he would step down from his post as Surgeon General and Chief of the Bureau, and accept a position in civilian life, possibly one reportedly offered him as Health Commissioner of New York City.

His successor—if there is to be one—would have to be chosen by Secretary Forrestal and high officers in the Navy Department and appointed by the President. There are eight Rear Admirals of the Medical Corps now on active duty, and rumors place each one in front from time to time in the race for Admiral McIntire's post. All entered the service before or during World War I and are also eligible for retirement. Youngest of the eight is Rear Adm. William J. O. Agnew, Deputy and Assistant Chief of the Bureau, who is said to be "leading" at present.

Other Rear Admirals of the Medical Corps, in order of seniority, are Daniel Hunt, District Medical Officer in Seattle; John Harper, General Inspector in the Bureau; Joel T. Boone, West Coast Inspector and medical officer for the Western Sea Frontier; Frederick L. Conklin, District Medical Officer in Chicago; Thomas C. Anderson, commanding the National Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md.; and George W. Calver, physician to the legislative bodies of Congress.

Army Nurse Corps—Lt. Col. Louise M. Fitzgerald, Army Nurse Corps, has taken over the post of Theater Director of Nurses, it was announced by the Office of the Theater Chief Surgeon. She succeeds Lt. Col. Nina M. Baker, ANC, who is to return to the U. S. for reassignment, following 30 months service in the ET.

Lt. Col. Fitzgerald, of Jacksonville, Fla., was Director of Nurses in Headquarters of the Persian Gulf Command during the war. Prior to her arrival in the ET, several weeks ago, she had been serving as Director of Nurses for Headquarters, Fourth Service Command in Atlanta, Ga.

Transportation Corps—Maj. Gen. Edmond H. Leavey, Chief of Transportation, accompanied by Brig. Gen. Robt. H. Wylie, Assistant Chief of Transportation, attended the national convention of the Army Transportation Association in Chicago 13 and 14 Nov. and addressed the convention on the latter date. Principal speaker at the convention was Secretary of War Patterson.

From Chicago General Leavey proceeded to the West Coast to inspect Transportation Corps facilities at the San Francisco, Calif., and Seattle, Wash., Ports of Embarkation.

Maj. Gregg C. McLeod, TC, formerly on duty with the Office of Military Government in the European Theater of Operations, has been assigned to duty with the Office of the Chief of Transportation.

Lt. Col. Robert N. Crawford, Executive, Office of the Asst. Chief of Transportation, is absent on 45 days' temporary duty overseas on a special assignment in connection with the War Department's integration program.

OCT officers currently under orders for overseas assignment include Lt. Col. Donald G. McLennan, formerly Deputy Chief, Military Personnel Division; Maj. Henry E. Plizzati, Asst. Chief, General Traffic Branch, Commercial Traffic Service; and Capt. Francis S. Donnell, Chief, Requirements Branch, Supply Division.

Since its beginning last May, the Dependents' Section at Fort Lawton, sub-installation of the Seattle Port of Embarkation, has processed 3,932 women and children for shipment overseas.

Dependents left to join their husbands and fathers stationed in Japan, Korea, China, and Alaska. Peak load was during the month of July when 1,120 individuals were sent to Japan and sixty-eight to Alaska. During November, a total of 1,015 dependents will be shipped from the Seattle Port of Embarkation.

Lt. Col. Donald W. Noake, of Minneapolis, has been appointed Director of Training at Fort Eustis, Va.

Quartermaster Corps—A new tablet for purifying water in the soldier's canteen which is considered superior to the chlorine-type tablets used during the war has been developed by the Quartermaster Corps. With iodine employed instead of chlorine, the new tablets make the water less objectionable in taste and odor.

Army Ground Forces engaged in operational training and maneuvers during 1947 will be issued the new E ration to replace the old C ration and K ration for individual feeding of troops under field and combat conditions. As a result of tests by troops and upon the recommendation of the Office of The Surgeon General, the caloric content of the E ration will be increased from 3,331, as originally designed, to 3,800 calories per day by adding one meat item. Other changes will include redeveloping the chicken and vegetable item, including the chlorine-type tablets described above, increasing cigarettes from nine to 20 per man per day and doubling the supply of matches.

National Guard—Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, has announced the Federal recognition of 73 additional National Guard units throughout the country.

The Croix de Guerre with Palm was presented to the 36th Infantry Division at Austin, Tex., on Armistice Day by Lt. Gen. Maurice N. Mathenet, French military attache to the United States. The citation mentioned 21 units of the 36th Division. They were cited for action during the period of 24 Nov. to 2 Dec. 1944.

Appointment of Col. John F. Turner to the post of chief of staff of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay area's 61st Fighter Wing, California Air National Guard, was announced 8 Nov. by Brig. Gen. Curtis D. O'Sullivan, the state Adjutant General. General O'Sullivan also has announced the establishment at Camp San Luis Obispo of the property section of the California National Guard, which will control all Federal supplies, property and equipment issued to units throughout the state.

The Adjutant General of Pennsylvania has announced that with the recent appointment of 19 additional officers, in the Pennsylvania National Guard the total holding commissions has reached 582.

Army Nurse Corps Promotions

Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General, announced 14 Nov. that 108 first lieutenants of the Army Nurse Corps have been promoted to captain in recognition of their wartime service and the increased responsibilities they now hold in General Hospitals.

In the near future 316 more nurses will become captains as their qualifications are reviewed and approved. At the same time names of ten ANC captains have been submitted to the War Department for promotions to major. When those promotions are made, five vacancies will remain in that category.

"You know, Joe, I'm beginning to think Quaker Oats does give me more stamina!"

Quaker Oats is the kind of breakfast that helps make a fellow feel ready to tangle in any real "he-man" action! That famous, nut-tasty flavor, toasted right in by special process, has won all America—more servings of Quaker Oats are consumed than any other cereal! Brimful of whole-grain benefits needed by everyone for top vitality and strength, oatmeal leads all natural cereals in the great stamina element, Protein, in the anti-fatigue element, Vitamin B₁, and in Food-Iron and Food-Energy, too!

ARMISTICE DAY with its three-day holiday week-end served happily for football fans who took advantage of the occasion to trek to New York for the Army-Notre Dame game. In the company going over to the Metropolis were the Secretary of War and Mrs. Patterson and the Chief of Staff and Mrs. Eisenhower, who limited their excursion to a one day outing.

Those who stayed on included Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Ira Eaker, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Loris Norstad, Lt. Gen. and Mrs. J. Lawton Collins, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Willard S. Paul, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Joseph F. Battley, Maj. Gen. Gilbert Cook and his daughter, Mrs. Frederick Cook, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Alexander D. Surles also went to New York and were guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Surles, Jr., at Fort Totten.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Ralph H. Wooten spent the time with Mr. and Mrs. George Wilkinson, arriving back in Washington in time to entertain at a small dinner party Monday evening.

Rear Adm. and Mrs. Alfred White Chandler (DC) were accompanied by their son, Lt. Chandler, Jr., and all spent the week-end with Miss Florence Chandler, the Admiral's sister in Newark.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Robert W. Hasbrouck were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Crockett in New Brunswick and saw the game with them.

Col. and Mrs. George W. Childs and Miss Polly Childs took in the game, as did Lt. Col. and Mrs. Jerry Folda, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ward Ryan, Maj. and Mrs. H. L. Milledge, Maj. and Mrs. Horace Hatch, Maj. and Mrs. M. C. Carmack, and Col. and Mrs. R. H. Warren. Col. Ben Webster, commanding officer of Stuart Field at West Point, was with Mrs. Webster and several members of the Academy class of 1940, who with their wives also took in the classic.

Lewis A. Reinken, Jr., a plebe at the Military Academy, had with him for the game his parents, Capt. Reinken, USN, and Mrs. Reinken who spent the weekend in New York. They are home again, and entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon at the Army-Navy Club.

Mrs. Florence W. Skinner, charming and attractive wife of Col. Robert B. Skinner, MC, USA, and their seven-month-old daughter, Denise. Colonel and Mrs. Skinner live at Quarters 11, Walter Reed General Hospital, where the Colonel is Executive Officer for the Hospital and Army Medical Center.

Col. and Mrs. Lionel C. Goudeau have sent invitations for a cocktail party on the 22nd at their new home, 1318 Twenty-first street, Arlington, Va., when their guests will be made up largely of the Marine Corps contingent.

Prior to going to the football game in New York both Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Eisenhower took time out to be honor guests at a fashion show put on by the wives of Ordnance officers at Army-Navy Country Club, with Mrs. Everett Hughes, wife of Maj. Gen. Hughes, Chief of Ordnance, introducing the guests.

A happy feature of the event was the part taken by Miss Clare Winchester, (Please turn to Page 276)

Weddings and Engagements

MISS ELEANOR JEAN MADDOX, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Louis Wilson Maddox of Kingscote Gardens, Stanford University, Calif., on 19 Oct. became the bride of Mr. William Brownell Seabury, son of Mr. and Mrs. Almy Seabury of Oakland, Calif. The ceremony took place in the Stanford Memorial Church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin fashioned with a marquise yoke outlined in seed pearls. Orange blossoms crowned her fingertip veil and she carried a bouquet of white orchids, bouvardia and stephanotis.

Mrs. Paul Sutterley was matron of honor. Her dress was of orchid taffeta and she carried gold chrysanthemums. Bridesmaids were Jane Young of Berkeley, Roberta Doudell of San Jose and Ann Kilcourse of San Francisco, who wore frocks of chartreuse taffeta. They carried orchid chrysanthemums with matching flowers in their hair. Molly Carpenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus C. Carpenter of Los Angeles, wore a long yellow frock with cap of yellow rosebuds, in her role of flower girl. Mr. James K. Gray was Mr. Seabury's best man and the ushers were Paul Sutterley, Keith Bright and Marshall Kamena. Mrs. Maddox was in a soft blue afternoon gown with a powder blue ostrich hat. Mrs. Seabury wore gray with a pink feather hat. Both had white corsages.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony, where Jean cut her wedding cake with her father's saber. The bride attended Duke University where she affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma and is a graduate of Stanford University, class of 1944. Mr. Seabury who was graduated from the University of California in 1939 served as a Captain of Infantry with the 41st Division overseas from '42 to '45 and has seen service in Australia, New Guinea, the Philippines, and Japan. The couple will reside in Oakland, Calif. following their wedding trip through northern California and Oregon.

Col. and Mrs. Stephen Bowen Elkins, of Governors Island, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mae Wynn, to Maj. Lawrence Carlton Radford, USA, son of Mrs. Roy C. Radford and the late Mr. Radford, of Minneapolis, Minn.

The marriage will take place in Saint Cornelius Chapel, Governors Island, on 15 Dec.

Miss Elkins attended the University of Hawaii. Major Radford is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Word has been received from Springfield, Ill., of the marriage of Miss Mary-Leigh Gull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Leigh Gull, to Capt. David Guy Asherman, MC, USA, which took place 2 Nov.

After a honeymoon Captain Asherman will bring his bride to Walter Reed General Hospital, where he is stationed, after the 1st of December.

Miss Jane Elliott, daughter of Col. Arthur Dana Elliott, USA, and Mrs. Elliott of Seneca Ordnance Depot, Romulus, N. Y., and Lt. Alexander Turner Cochran, USA, were married 14 Nov., in Trinity Church, Geneva, N. Y. The Reverend Samuel H. Edsall officiated.

The bride wore the traditional white satin wedding gown. Her veil and collar were of heirloom lace over a French illusion. She carried a bouquet of white orchids crowned with white roses and bouvardia and surrounded by white carnations. Miss Joan Elliot, sister of the bride, was the Maid of Honor. The other attendants were Miss Nancy Edwards, Miss Miriam Looney, Miss Deborah Shepard, and Miss Betty Williamson.

Lt. Cochran is the son of Col. John Henry Cochran, USA, and Mrs. Cochran of The Plains, Va. Maj. Jesse W. Kelley of Baltimore was best man. The ushers were Messrs. Hallet Burrall and Frederick Shepard, Lt. Richard G. Newell, and Lt. George J. Nelson. Lieutenants Newell and Nelson, USA, were classmates of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Cochran was graduated from National Cathedral School, Washington, D. C. and was a Junior at Wellesley College. Lt. Cochran is a graduate of Fishburne Military School and U. S. Military Academy, Class of 1946.

Out of town guests included those from Washington, Boston, New York, and New Jersey.

After a short honeymoon Lt. and Mrs. Cochran will be stationed at Pope Field, N. C.

Cole Manor, the ancestral home in Marietta, Ga., of Capt. Loren Fletcher Cole, was the scene, 4 Nov. of his marriage with Miss Anne Marshall Magruder of Atlanta, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Marshall Magruder. Bishop John Moore Walker performed the ceremony before the seven branched cathedral tapers of the improvised altar, amid a bower of white chrysanthemums and greenery.

Mrs. Peyton Marshall Magruder of Baltimore served as matron of honor and was gowned in American Beauty fairs, a basque bodice and full skirt with which she wore an ostrich tip of matching red in her hair.

Col. Raymond D. Palmer of the Seventh Army was best man, and ushers included Messrs. Stanton Read, Bayard Cole, Morgan McNeal, Jr., and P. D. Reeser.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was clad in ivory satin fashioned with basque, full skirt and long train, with trimming of seed pearl embroidery. Her veil of Brussels lace was loaned by Mrs. James Butner, life-long friend of Mrs. Magruder, and it was fastened to her hair by the coronet of pearls and orange blossoms. The bouquet was of tuberose and swainsons.

A reception followed at the Magruder home on Camden Road, the three-tiered wedding cake being cut by the bride with her husband's saber. Capt. Cole, who is the son of Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee and the late Maj. Henry Greene Cole, took his bride to Florida and Jamaica on a honeymoon. (Please turn to Page 277)

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Grunther visited Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Taylor at West Point. Their son, who is taking the Infantry course at Fort Benning, flew up and they enjoyed the game together.

A special train was intact to take up all rosters for the game. Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Lannon were among those present.

Vice Adm. and Mrs. Harry W. Hill were honored by a visit from their son Jack, who is stationed in Philadelphia.

Capt. and Mrs. Shultz have as their house guests Mrs. Shultz's two sisters, Miss Harriett Merwin and Mrs. Malcolm Sklock, from St. Croix, Virgin Islands.

This visit was an incentive for a Virgin Island party, for which Mrs. Sklock's son flew up from the Islands. The Sklock family are one of the oldest Scotch residents of the Virgin Islands.

FORT BRAGG, N. C.

9 Nov. 1946

The Fort Bragg Women's Club has organized anew with the following officers elected for the next six months: Mrs. John N. Hauser, president; Mrs. Neal C. Johnson, first vice-president; Mrs. James M. Gavin, second vice-president; Mrs. Richard L. Walker, secretary, and Mrs. John G. Casey, treasurer.

The aims and purposes of the club are to promote companionship among the officers' wives and to take an active working part in all Post activities, such as Red Cross, Thrift Shop, Girl Scouts, children's playground supervision, etc. Many committees are at work on these projects and on interesting programs for the coming luncheon meetings.

The Thrift Shop, with Mrs. William H. E. Rendell as manager, is doing a thriving business with all proceeds going to the Army Relief Society.

The Red Cross, headed by Mrs. J. E. Ardrey and Mrs. Guy Kurtz, is working on surgical dressings for Fort Bragg hospitals, and the Gray Ladies, with Mrs. James N. Williams, and the Red Cross sewing unit, with Mrs. S. S. Davis, are progressing nicely.

The new Army Relief Society president for Fort Bragg is Mrs. S. LeRoy Irwin, with Mrs. James M. Gavin as vice-president.

FT. SAM HOUSTON, TEX.

12 Nov. 1946

Lt. Gen. Maurice Mathenet and Col. A. J. P. Le Bel, French military attaches at Washington, D. C., were France's representatives who presented the Croix de Guerre to the 36th Division, Texas National Guard, at ceremonies in Austin on Armistice Day.

Maj. Gen. John B. Coulter represented the Federal Government in returning colors to the 36th Division and Texas National Guard units at the ceremonies.

Armistice Day was no holiday for Fourth Army generals. Speaking assignments found leaders as far away from their Ft. Sam Houston command post as Providence, R. I.

General Jonathan M. Walnwright, commander, was at Junction City, Kans.

Maj. Gen. John B. Coulter, deputy commander, was at Austin.

Maj. Gen. Percy W. Clarkson, assistant commander, was at Seguin.

Brig. Gen. Lewis C. Beebe, chief of staff, was at Providence, R. I.

Brig. Gen. Benjamin C. Lockwood, Jr., G-3, was grand marshal of an Armistice Day parade through the streets of downtown San Antonio.

Brig. Gen. J. R. Sheets, G-2, addressed the Army-Civilian Club in San Antonio.

Brig. Gen. K. L. Berry, executive officer, Texas Military District, spoke at San Marcos.

GREENVILLE AAB, S. C.

9 Nov. 1946

Col. William M. Gross, Ninth Air Force Chief of Staff, and who led some of the most daring and spectacular AAF bombing raids on the European continent during World War II, has received notification from the War Department that he now holds the rating of Command Pilot.

A 37-year-old West Point graduate and veteran of more than three years' overseas, Colonel Gross rose to the rank of Brigadier General during the war, and was in command of the famous First Bomb Wing of Eighth Air Force in the European Theater.

Brig. Gen. Jarried V. Crabb, Deputy Commanding General of the Ninth Air Force, took his first glider ride recently at the Greenville Army Air Base. General Crabb, formerly commanding general of the Ninth Air Force at El Paso, Tex., was accompanied by Lt. Loren H. Portman, of the 37th Troop Carrier Squadron, as glider instructor. General Crabb has been a pursuit pilot and more lately a bomber commander.

The same afternoon Col. William M. Gross, Chief of Staff of the Ninth, took his initial ride in a glider with Maj. H. H. Cloud, senior aide-de-camp to Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, Commanding General of the Ninth Air Force.

Keen competition is expected in a scheduled basketball tilt 3 Jan. when the TAC Invaders, Langley Field cage team, clash with the Purple Hurricane, Furman College team, in the Greenville Army Air Base gym. The TAC slate at present lists five other college opponents and an equal number of service teams.

CAMP LEE, VA.

12 Nov. 1946

Col. Dewitt T. Mullett, Post Executive Officer, is resting comfortably in the Camp Lee Regional Hospital after a recent operation. Lt. Col. Kenneth W. Dalton, Post Inspector General, has taken over Colonel Mullett's duties during his absence.

A Children's Nursery for the wives of Quartermaster School Officers attending Red Cross sewing gatherings and social activities has been established at Camp Lee's Quartermaster School. It was announced today.

Located in the school area, the nursery is under the direction of Maj. Elias F. Desena, Club Officer.

Mrs. Priscilla Hardison, wife of Lt. Col. Felix M. Hardison of the Army Air Forces, is reported to be in good condition at the home of her parents, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Roy C. L. Graham. Mrs. Hardison recently underwent an operation at the Camp Lee Regional Hospital. Her two daughters, Felecia, five, and Suzanne, three, are also with their grandparents.

ANTILLES DEPT., PUERTO RICO

1 Nov. 1946

Col. Frederick M. Harris, post commander of Ft. Brooke, Puerto Rico, and Mrs. Harris were welcomed to the Antilles Department at a reception 20 Oct. at El Morro Officers' Club. Over 200 Antilles Department officers and their wives attended the reception, including Brig. Gen. William W. Bessell, Jr., commanding general of the Department, members of his staff, and officers of the Ft. Brooke garrison.

A tea dance followed the reception and guests were served a buffet supper later in the evening.

Colonel Harris was stationed at Governor's Island prior to assuming command at Ft. Brooke. He relieved Col. Harry R. Simmons, who is now on duty at Port of Spain, Trinidad.

The Ft. Buchanan baseball team, winners of the 1946 Antilles Department championship, were honored at a banquet at the Sergeants' Club on the post 26 Oct. Players, their families and friends attended the party. Col. William R. Irvin, post commander, and Maj. C. M. Adams, Antilles Department Special Service Officer, presented team members with Department athletic medals and awards following a dinner. Dancing and other entertainment followed the presentations.

Antilles Department Post Engineers, representing each garrison in the Caribbean Area, attended a conference at Department Headquarters, Fort Brooke, Puerto Rico, 26 to 31 Oct. The purpose of the conference was to assemble Post Engineer Officers to prepare the Engineer Budget and to discuss new policies and procedures on repairs and utilities adopted by the Department Engineer.

The Antilles Department Commanding General, Brig. Gen. William W. Bessell, Jr., opened the conference with a brief address outlining the purpose of the meeting.

The following named officers were present at the conference: Col. H. J. Woodbury, Antilles Department Engineer; Lt. Col. C. R. Rosenbaum, Deputy Department Engineer; Lt. Col. Frank de Glacome, Department Engineer Executive; Lt. Col. Michael Grimaldi, Fort Read, Trinidad; Lt. Col. W. D. Mouchet, Fort Read; Maj. Pedro F. Rinaldi, Lescay Field, Puerto Rico; Maj. W. R. Obituaries

Maj. Gen. Edward F. McGlachlin, USA-Ret., died 9 Nov. at Walter Reed General Hospital after an illness of several months. He was buried at West Point 12 Nov.

General McGlachlin was born in Fon du Lac, Wis., in 1868, and was graduated from the Military Academy in 1890. As a young artillery officer, he first attracted attention in 1906 by directing the hoisting of a field gun up the side of Mt. Dajo, in suppressing the rebellion of the Moro natives in the Philippines.

In World War I, he was artillery commander of the First Army at the Meuse-Argonne, Aisne-Marne, and St. Mihiel offensives. On his return to the United States, he was appointed commandant of the Army War College in July 1921, and served in that capacity until June 1925. He was appointed to the permanent rank of Major General on 1 April 1922, and retired in grade, at his request, 2 Nov. 1923.

General McGlachlin is survived by his wife, Mrs. Louise H. McGlachlin of 2122 California St., N. W., Washington, D. C.; a daughter, Mrs. John E. Hatch; five grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

Brig. Gen. John B. Franks died 13 Nov. at Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C. He had been confined to the hospital several months prior to his death. Funeral services were held 14 Nov. at Fort Myer, Va., with interment following at Arlington Cemetery.

General Franks, former Deputy Quartermaster General of the Army, is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ora Hicks Franks, and a step-son, Lt. George Grimes.

Honorary pallbearers: Maj. Gen. Robert M. Littlejohn, War Assets Administrator; Maj. Gen. Thomas B. Larkin, Quartermaster General; Brig. Gen. Herman Feldman, Col. Ira K. Evans, Col. George Hartman, Col. Robert Hollis, Col. Michael Zwicker, Col. Kester L. Hastings, Col. Jack Horner, and Lt. Col. Edward Tolliver.

Born in Leavenworth, Kans., 10 March 1890, General Franks held many Quartermaster posts in the United States and Hawaii. Sailing for Europe in 1942, he became Chief of Plans and Training Division and Deputy for Planning, Office of Chief Quartermaster, European Theater. In August 1944 he was named Deputy Chief Quartermaster, Communications Zone, and in 1945 was made Special Assistant to the Commanding General, American Graves Registration Command, European Theater. On his return to the United States he was appointed Deputy Quartermaster General.

Mrs. Patterson's niece from England, who is visiting her and the Secretary, and who made a most charming model for gowns and coats displayed at the show, which was followed by a luncheon. Miss Winchester was the guest of honor at a luncheon given Monday at the Country Club by Miss Mary Watts McNeil, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Edwin Colyer McNeil. Another luncheon at the popular club across the Potomac was that given yesterday by Mrs. Richard Bonesteel, wife of Maj. Gen. Bonesteel.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Shelly U. Marietta have returned to Washington from their recent visit in Miami, Fla., and are at their home at 3133 Connecticut Ave.

Among dinner parties of last week were those of Capt. and Mrs. J. B. Hogle, USN, and Capt. and Mrs. George E. Peterson, USN, both parties at the Army-Navy Country Club; the latter in compliment to Capt. and Mrs. Collins Landstreet, on leave from Honolulu and visiting Capt. and Mrs. A. H. Chandler. The first dinner company was composed of Navy Captains and their wives, including Capt. and Mrs. G. B. H. Hall, Capt. and Mrs. Thomas H. Templeton, Capt. and Mrs. John B. Rooney, Capt. and Mrs. John Hulme, Capt. and Mrs. Edward P. Southwick, and Capt. and Mrs. Reynold D. Hogle, brother of the host and his wife.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. H. Conger Pratt entertained friends at the cocktail hour after the football game in New York last Saturday, the guests being mostly Service folk.

The Washington unit of the Coast Guard Welfare group held a luncheon at the Army-Navy Country Club Tuesday, followed by a business meeting presided over by Mrs. R. B. Lank, Jr., plans being made for the distribution of baskets of fruit for Coast Guardsmen in Bethesda and St. Elizabeth Hospitals. Comdr. Leon H. Morine, USCG, director of the unit, and Lt. Austin J. Flynn, USCG, made addresses.

Mrs. Norman T. Kirk, wife of the Surgeon General of the Army, yesterday received at their quarters at Walter Reed Medical Center representatives of B'Nai B'rith who presented $200.00 as a memorial to the first nurse killed in the last war, Miss Frances Slinger. This oldest of Jewish Service organizations is making this donation towards the building of the Nurses National Memorial and was represented yesterday by Miss Ida Cook Sabar of the Supreme Council, and Lawrence Koenigsburger, Washington Supreme Council, Post War Service-Americanism.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Kirk attended the social gathering yesterday at the Army-Navy Country Club, at which Gen. and Mrs. Ho Ying Chien were hosts, and Mrs. Kirk poured tea at the party given at the Medical Building by the medical auxiliary wives of civilian doctors in the war.

The Commanding Officer of Walter Reed, Brig. Gen. George C. Beach, and Mrs. Beach are being congratulated on their wedding anniversary and will be entertained tonight at the post.

Col. and Mrs. Virgil Cornell are giving a supper party tomorrow evening at their quarters at the Medical Center.

At an informal dinner party held at the Army and Navy Club 11 Nov., Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Edward F. Witsell had as their guest of honor, Sister Elizabeth Kenny of infantile paralysis fame.

Other guests were Col. and Mrs. Sidney F. Mashbir, Captain and Mrs. George H. Malnes, and Mrs. Lewis, secretary to Sister Kenny.

The ladies of the Finance Department entertained at a luncheon and bridge party last Thursday held at the Army and Navy Club in Washington, D. C. Mrs. Carl Witcher was the hostess, assisted by the ladies of officers assigned to the Finance Office, U. S. Army, Washington, D. C.

The Officers' Wives Club of Long Beach, Calif., held its regular monthly luncheon and bridge at the Army and Navy Club, 1800 East Ocean Avenue on Wednesday, 6 Nov.

The large U-shaped table was lovely with centerpiece of Autumn flowers and decorations. A delicious luncheon was enjoyed by the many wives and their guests. After luncheon, many of those attending enjoyed an afternoon of Bridge in the Lounge of the Club.

There was much appreciation expressed to the November Hospitality Committee for its fine work. Those on the Committee were Mrs. W. H. Organ, Senior hostess, assisted by Mesdames Wells Thompson, Lewis Corman, D. J. (Please turn to Next Page)

THE IDEAL CHRISTMAS GIFT FOR YOUR FRIENDS IN THE ARMED FORCES!

Racking your brains for a PERSONAL Christmas gift when every dollar counts for living expenses, there is a grand solution: A present of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

A subscription to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL for husband, brother or sweetheart means that for fifty-two times in the coming year your Christmas thought will be refreshed in the mind of the recipient. It will be appreciated by the soldier, the sailor or the airman.

Because, in the weekly ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL there will be found all the news so vital to their welfare.

Because, all Executive and Congressional acts will be reported in its columns.

Because of its publication of official circulars and reports and matters of service interest.

Because of its discussions of foreign relations.

Because of its forthright editorials.

Because, going on 84 years young, it vigorously and forcefully advocates all policies important to the welfare of the Services and with equal vigor and force opposes those harmful to them.

To insure prompt delivery of this exceptional CHRISTMAS GIFT simply clip and mail the attached coupon immediately:

Vellis, R. D. Harwood, and D. Curtis Johnson.

Mrs. Charles E. T. Lull, who was injured in a street accident last May, is now in residence at the Pacific Coast Club, Long Beach, after being in the hospital for three months.

Mrs. O. L. Bell and children have left Washington to join Col. Bell in Korea, he having recently gone after a leave of absence in this country.

Mrs. Robert G. Merritt, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Amos A. Fries, whom she has been visiting, has left town to be with Lt. Comdr. Merritt at his post in Norfolk, Va.

The Military Personnel Branch of the Office, Chief of Finance, War Department, had a Harvest Moon Weiner Roast in Rock Creek Park last week. Everyone had an enjoyable time eating and participating in the softball game, barn dancing and group singing.

Those attending were Col. Ernest O. Lee, Chief, Military Personnel Branch, OCF, Mrs. Lee, their daughter Marion and sons Orrin and Fitzhugh; Col. and Mrs. L. D. Varney and daughter Nancy; Lt. Col. Samuel E. Burns and the following civilian employees of the branch with their guests: Miss Lucille Bogle, Mr. and Mrs. John Dick, Miss Kitty C. East, Miss Marie Errera, Miss Mary F. Harden, Miss Addie Redmond, Miss A. Gertrude Schrock, Miss Mary A. Seebacher, Miss Gerry Smith, Mrs. Ruth Smith, Miss Leatha Tackett, Miss Ruth Thomas, Mrs. Irene Williams, Miss Frances M. Witt, and Mr. and Mrs. William Wright.

On Monday evening, 11 Nov., the Air Forces Chapter, Department of District of Columbia, Reserve Officers' Association, held their first post-war Military Ball in the Continental Room of the Wardman Park Hotel. Music was furnished by the Army Air Forces Band.

Among the honored guests present were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Earl E. Partridge and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. A. E. Evans. General Partridge is Assistant Chief of Air Staff and General Evans is Executive Secretary Reserve Officers' Association.

Lt. Thomas E. Collins, Chapter President, gave a few remarks of greetings and with the assembled guests observed one minute's silence in memory of those who lost their lives in the service of our country.

The affair was a great success and was attended by more than five hundred guests.

The Junior Chapter of Army Daughters of Washington, D. C. will meet Wednesday night, 20 Nov. at 8 o'clock at the home of Miss Joyce Krueger, 2127 California Street, Apt. 513. All members of Army Daughters interested please contact Miss Krueger (phone AD 2484) or Miss Patricia Foster (phone OL 0619).

Weddings and Engagements

moon. They will live at Marietta and Gainesville, Fla.

The marriage of Maj. Elizabeth E. Hardesty to Col. Grover L. Wilson, Jr., AAF, was solemnized at high noon, 9 Nov. at the National City Christian Church, Washington, D. C., with Reverend J. Warren Hastings officiating.

Miss Hardesty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil J. Hardesty of Detroit, was given in marriage by her father in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride was attired in an Adele Simpson suit of black broadcloth, trimmed in ermine, and an off-the-face hat with a halo of matching ermine. Black accessories and a shoulder bouquet of white orchids completed the ensemble.

Her only attendant, Capt. Virginia Justin Phelps, wore a purple suit, black picture hat trimmed in ostrich tips, and a corsage of green orchids.

Mr. Charles Crockett was best man. Miss Hardesty was born in Honolulu and received her degree at the University of Colorado, Denver. She is a member of the Kappa Delta sorority. She is a Major in the Army Air Forces, and has been assigned the past year in AAF Headquarters, Washington, as WAC Staff Director for the Air Forces.

Col. Wilson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover L. Wilson, sr., of Hampton, Va. He is attending the Armed Forces Industrial College in Washington. He is a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute. After a honeymoon in New York, Colonel and Mrs. Wilson will be at home at 449 Newcomb Street, N. E., Washington.

Announced to friends about the Tokyo area is the engagement of Miss Betty Lee Riordan, and Lt. Robert I. Starr, son of Brig. Gen. Robert E. Starr and Mrs. Starr, of Tokyo, Japan.

Miss Riordan is the daughter of Lt. Col. Bernard N. Riordan and Mrs. Riordan of Tokyo. The bride-to-be attended Holton Arms Junior College in Washington, D. C.

Her fiancé graduated from West Point in June 1915. At present he is stationed with the 1st Cav. Div. in Tokyo.

Wedding plans have not been completed as yet.

Posts and Stations

Ronne, Chief of Staff, Amphibious Group One; Capt. J. R. Carson, Commander of Transport Squadron One; Capt. B. S. Anderson, Commander of Transport Division 12; Capt. F. L. Riddle, Commanding Officer of the U. S. S. Mount McKinley; Marine Corps—Col. M. F. Schneider, Regimental Combat Team Instructor; Col. J. P. Riseley, G-3, Troop Training Unit; Col. Earl S. Piper, G-4, Troop Training Unit; Army—Col. James M. Lewis, Deputy Post Commander; Col. Marshall Quesenberry, Director of Personnel, and Mrs. Quesenberry; Col. Adlai C. Young, Post Personnel and Administration Officer, and Mrs. Young; Col. W. B. Kern, Commander of 23d Infantry Regiment, and Mrs. Kern; Col. Theodore F. Bogart, Commander of the 9th Infantry Regiment, and Mrs. Bogart.

Displaying the might of the Second Infantry Division in honor of Rear Adm. Bertram J. Rodgers, commander of Amphibious Force One, Pacific Fleet, the Fort Lewis Indianheads Tuesday morning, 5 Nov., passed in review at Gray Field.

In the reviewing stand were Maj. Gen. Paul W. Kendall, Post Commanding General; Admiral Rodgers and Marine Colonel J. T. Seldon, Chief of Staff of the Troop Training Unit, and their respective staffs.

THE ARMORED CENTER

Ft. Knox, Ky.

5 Nov. 1946

Maj. K. K. Hansen of the Army Ground Forces, Information section, Washington, visited the Armored Center for conferences with public relations officers.

Capt. Earl S. Sleeper, salvage and surplus property officer, reports that the auction sale of salvage property held here this week was an outstanding success and made a clean sweep of salvage property at Fort Knox.

As part of the economy measures in reduction of armed forces expenditures, a Separation point has again been established at the Armored Center for the separation of military personnel directly from their permanent posts rather than sending them to other separation installations. Lt. Col. J. H. Hyland is in command of the separation point. Men being discharged from here will receive the same advice, service and guidance on veterans' rights, insurance and GI Bill normally given at a separation center.

MACDILL FIELD, FLA.

8 Nov. 1946

Detailed plans for the annual Christmas party for the children of all military personnel stationed at MacDill Field, Tampa, Fla., were discussed at the regular meeting of the MacDill Field Women's Club.

The party for the youngsters will be held Monday afternoon, 23 Dec., at 3 o'clock.

Twelve new members were received, and two guests were present. After luncheon, bridge, duplicate and rummy games were played, with door prizes going to Mrs. Marie Heald and Mrs. Ida Charles Wilson.

Hostesses for the day were Mrs. Herbert Shingler, Mrs. J. C. Thrift and Mrs. C. L. Fishburne.

FINANCE

Financial Digest

President Truman 9 Nov. ended wartime wage controls and all remaining price ceilings with the exception of those on rents, sugar, and rice. Rent ceilings, it was indicated, might be raised.

The order for wage decontrol applies to all firms and industries except those which are still under Federal seizure.

"The general control over prices and wages," the President's statement read, "is justifiable only so long as it is an effective instrument against inflation. I am convinced that the time has come when these controls can serve no useful purpose. I am, indeed, convinced that their further continuance would do the Nation's economy more harm than good. Accordingly, I have directed the immediate abandonment of all control over wages and salaries and all control over prices except that necessary to implement the rationing and allocation programs of sugar and rice. Rent control, however, must and will be continued."

General Motors Corporation announced 11 Nov. that, effective at once, factory list prices of all passenger car models produced and sold in the United States were increased $100.

In making the announcement, C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors, said the following three factors make the price increase necessary:

"1. In spite of the fact that the dollar volume of business done by General Motors in the third quarter of this year was about the same as the previous peacetime quarterly peak, achieved in 1941, General Motors operations, particularly as they were affected by the prices of cars, trucks and household appliances, were not on a satisfactory basis.

"2. Prices of General Motors cars and trucks as set by OPA discriminated against General Motors. The OPA pricing formula and its administration in the industry allowed competitors of General Motors substantially greater price increases than were allowed General Motors.

"3. In addition to other factors, the OPA assumed in fixing car prices that volume of production in units would be at least equal to that achieved in 1941. Because of shortages of basic raw materials, it will be impossible for General Motors to attain any such rate of production at least during the next six months."

MERCHANT MARINE

Merchant Marine

Moving to meet a world-wide emergency oil shortage, the Maritime Commission has ordered 35 large tankers out of its reserve fleet and placed in service.

The tankers will supply Army and Navy needs in Europe, as well as keep continental refineries in operation to help provide fuels vitally needed this winter. The ships will also meet additional domestic U. S. needs.

All major oil companies had requested the Commission's help in making the tankers available to supplement private fleets. The 35 tankers will be operated by regular tanker companies acting as agents for the Maritime Commission.

Use of these vessels represents a dramatic example of the functions of the Maritime Commissions' reserve fleets in meeting emergency needs.

War-built merchant ships were sold at home and abroad at the rate of three a day during October, the Maritime Commission has announced. Sale of 92 vessels under the Merchant Ship Sales Act of 1946 were approved during the month, raising the total to 477 since the Act went into effect. The return to the Government on these sales was $91,548,000, increasing the aggregate sales price to $410,000,000.

Contracts for the reconversion to C-type cargo ships have been approved for the following troop transports:

Christmas Greeting Messages

Christmas greeting messages may be sent by Naval personnel from ships and overseas stations under conditions prescribed by the Chief of Naval Communications.

U. S. COAST GUARD

THE Secretary of the Treasury has designated Assistant Secretary of the Treasury E. H. Foley, Jr., and Admiral Joseph F. Farley as representative and alternate representative, respectively, on the recently formed Shipping Coordinating Committee.

The Shipping Coordinating Committee will not intrude upon the statutory functions or responsibilities of other agencies. It will act primarily as a coordinating and advisory body with authority to reach final decisions only when all government agencies concerned accord such authority for a particular problem.

The Chamber of Commerce and the City of St. Louis will jointly sponsor an Air Defense Exhibit, which will include a demonstration of Ioran, on 10-17 Nov.

The Public Health Service has advised Headquarters that hospitalization of Coast Guard personnel in U. S. Naval Hospitals is costing approximately $26,000 a month and that estimates for appropriations did not contemplate any such expenditure. In view of this fact, an AIDist was released stressing the necessity to restrict admissions to Naval Hospitals to inpatient treatment only in emergency.

During the period 1-25 Oct., orders were issued to 20 Reserve officers recalling them to active duty. Of this number, eight were aviators. Since 1 Aug., 84 Reserve officers have been recalled, 28 of whom were assigned to aviation duty.

The following retirements are effective 1 Nov. in ranks indicated:

matters of detail which can be spared the scientists.

The recent war has taught us the lesson that we must continue an extensive research program in time of peace. During the war years, we were rapidly heading toward bankruptcy of the fund of scientific knowledge. The emphasis was on immediate practical application of that knowledge which had already been uncovered and put into usable form. There was no time for the leisurely exploration of fields which did not appear to offer quick solutions to recognized problems. The Laboratory record shows that, during the last year of the war, reports issued covered more than nine hundred problems which were of sufficient interest to the various Bureaus of the Navy Department and to the Fleet to justify investigation.

The problems are no fewer in number but the research is more basic, longer in range, and more imaginative in scope. Every field of science explored offers innumerable opportunities to an alert Navy. As an example of this, the Naval Research Laboratory was the first government activity to investigate the possibilities of nuclear energy. In 1939, a program of research directed toward atomic power was initiated. The Laboratory is still interested in this branch of science. Atomic power offers enticing possibilities in connection with ship propulsion and the Navy's scientists are anxious to get further into this field. An equally fundamental investigation is the measurement of cosmic energy in the ionosphere by means of miniature laboratories sent aloft in the famous Army-fired V-2 rockets. Other engineers are grasping the opportunities presented by these same superaltitude flights to study the propagation of radio waves, the temperature and pressure distributions, the ultraviolet and infrared radiations, in the uncluttered space five hundred thousand feet above sea level. Incidentally this work is a shining example of cooperation between Army, Navy, commercial, and educational institutions.

One of the most stimulating features of naval research has been its corollary, a record of continuous service to American industry. The metallurgists at the Naval Research Laboratory have found metal alloys capable of withstanding extremely high temperatures; they have greatly improved welding techniques; and they have adapted X-rays, radium and the Betatron to the study of cast materials. The chemists have synthesized special purpose lubricants which will stand up under extreme temperature operations; they have developed a non-inflammable fluid for the hydraulic systems in aircraft and a fog repellent coating for aircraft windshields. The physicists and electrical engineers have also made flying safer by vanquishing the radio gremlin known as precipitation static; they are constantly at work improving, making smaller, and increasing the reliability of the many electrical devices which are installed in modern aircraft. Similarly, the radio engineers are continually assisting in the safety of aircraft by coming up with better communication and navigation equipment. When war-developed radar reaches full commercial application, there should be no reason for weather interference with flight schedules.

On the subject of current military developments little can be said for obvious reasons of security. However, some broad general statements may be made. The radar specialists are at work in an effort to improve range and accuracy of detection and control activities. The problem of fool-proof identification of friendly forces by electronic means is still with us and some progress is being made. Radio countermeasures, so valuable in confounding our enemies in the recent war, remains active with sights set on the dim future and a watchful eye upon every advance that is made in the radio and radar fields. Sound engineers, justly proud of their own battle-proved developments, are probing further into the vagaries of sound propagation beneath the sea, evaluating many sonic and ultrasonic devices used by our recent enemies, and launching new developments pointing toward instruments for detecting submarines with greater range and accuracy than equipment now available. A large portion of the Laboratory's effort in a variety of fields is directed toward ultimate application in guided missiles, pilotless aircraft and other remotely controlled devices.

In conclusion, it can be stated that we are basking in the relative sunshine of peace here on the Potomac. We are thankful that the era of pushbutton warfare of stupendous proportions is not with us today. However, we are grimly aware of the possibilities of the future. If it becomes necessary for the United States to send atomic robots to blot out the populations of the enemies of freedom, Naval Research Laboratory scientists, engineers and technicians will stand ready to push the buttons, read the meters and grease the launching skids.

Maj. Stewart Honored by BSA

Maj. Samuel T. Stewart, USA-Ret., was honored recently by the Boy Scouts of America with the award of the Silver Beaver. The award was made for "distinguished service to boyhood." Presentation was made at Hyannis, Mass.
Major Stewart has served in many capacities with the Boy Scouts of America since 1911.

Notify the Army and Navy Journal promptly of any change of address.
